Drive to be called United Way

A new name and a new kind of goal were approved by the Tri-Cities Area United Fund board yesterday afternoon at the YMCA. Also authorized was an advance planning group.

United Way was chosen as the name of the UF organization to coincide with similar designations throughout the U. S.

With proposed pre-campaign agency allocations listed as $385,461, the United Way directors decided to "break" the $400,000 barrier.

The specific goal was set at $400,000 and it was agreed that member agencies will "share fully, on the basis of verified needs, in additional funds which will be sought."

Financial and pledge solicitation in October 1973 will be conducted to provide part of the operating funds required by member agencies in the calendar year of 1974.

United Way President Paul H. Kelly, A. O. Smith Corp. plant manager, presided.

Other officers are: vice-presidents, Leo Schermer, partner in the Schermer Brothers Supermarket, and Robert Edmonds assistant to the president of Granite City Steel Co.; secretary, Ralph Morris, II, operator of Morris Realty; and treasurer, John McDonald, vice-president and cashier of the Granite City Trust and Savings Bank.

Allocations were approved by the board after being presented by David Fox, vice-president and marketing director of the First Granite City National Bank.

Fox heads the Admissions and Distributions Committee, which was changed yesterday to the Budget and Allocation Committee.

A Planning Committee was created to become active after the campaign. It will look into immediate and long-range community needs and confer with agency boards on methods of defining and assigning categories of service.

Campaign Chairman William F. Winter, editor of the Press-Record, and S. T. "Pete" Nasir, United Way executive director, presented talks outlining plans for personal contact of all potential contributors.

Pre-campaign allocations are:

Delay Dobby work a year

A proposed drainage program for Dobby Slough was "shot down" Tuesday for at least one year when no bids for the work were received from contractors, John Guillou, chief state waterway engineer, said after the scheduled bid opening.

Guillou said the lack of bidders ended the hope of awarding a contract during the state's 1973 fiscal year, which ends Saturday.

He said no provisions have been made in the state's 1974 budget for the project because it was to have been funded this fiscal year.

"We are finished for fiscal '73 and '74 unless we can make a special arrangement through the governor's office and there is a recommended session of the General Assembly," he explained.

Guillou added, "We might get it done in early 1974, but I don't think there is any possibility at all we can get this (appropriation) through before Christmas."

Since the project requires a special appropriation bill, he explained, the only hope for Dobby Slough interim drainage in fiscal 1974 is for some of the 1974 projects which have been dropped.

"If some of the 1974 projects do not materialize, we can try to get a bill through to reallocate that money, but a new formal bill and a new formal agreement with Gov. Walker will be required," he said.

"There is no question about the governor's interest in this project. No question at all. We will do it as best we can to find it if it is at all possible," Guillou predicted.

Venice century old today

Exactly a hundred years ago today, a local river settlement officially became the village of Venice.

The centennial is the second major Venice anniversary within a span of less than 16 months.

The village existed for not quite 24 years before it became a city. The city's 75th anniversary was reached on March 16, 1972.

Last year's observance was postponed to coincide with the centennial this summer. However, no specific plans for a celebration materialized this year.

Although it was not until June 28, 1873, that Dr. Cornelius Campbell proclaimed Venice to be a village, it is the "father" of the Quad-Cities with a history dating from 1812, six years before Illinois became a state.

Press-Record files show that the settlement of Venice was begun when John Atkins arrived from Kentucky shortly before the outbreak of the war of 1812.

Atkins was present at the signing of the peace treaty of the United States and Great Britain at Portage des Sioux north of here on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River.

The second settler, Daniel Lockhart, built on an elevated ridge a short distance from the site of the old Venice elevator.

In 1815, John Anthony began a rental service of flat-bottomed skiffs for persons wishing to retrace the Mississippi to the western side.

Venice developed as a terminus of the old "national" way, then a 100-

City gearing for industrial bonds

By HARRY BARNES

Press-Record Staff Writer

An ordinance by which Granite City may issue industrial revenue bonds to acquire, build or improve economic development projects was enacted by the city Council Monday night.

The bill adopted as "home rule" legislation, also permits issuance of industrial revenue bonds to finance installation of pollution control equipment in plants operated by private interests.

Under terms of the ordinance, the city would be able to issue revenue bonds to build or improve industrial property which then could be leased, rented or sold to any persons under a financial arrangement sufficient to retire the bonds.

Enactment of the measure is expected to clear the way for the city to fulfill a commitment to Archer Daniels Midland Co. to assist the firm in building a soybean processing plant near its grain elevator on Carroll Road.

In its June 4 session, the council voted to allow Mayor Paul Schuler to sign a memorandum of agreement between ADM and the city, calling for the city to issue about $4.5 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance construction of the soybean plant.

Under the plan, ADM would try to sell the bonds and, if successful, would give title to the soybean plant to the city in return for the funds. The company then would lease the facility from the city, with the rent being used to retire the bonds.

Purpose of the ordinance, the bill said, "is to provide a financing device which will aid in financing the cost of projects in order to relieve conditions of unemployment and to encourage the increase of industry within the municipality, thereby reducing the evils attendant upon unemployment and to provide for the increased welfare and prosperity of the residents of the municipality."

The measure empowers the city to:

"Construct, acquire by gift, purchase or lease, to reconstruct, improve, better or extend and to finance one or more projects, whether or not new or heretofore existing within the municipality, and, if desirable, to acquire by gift, purchase or lease lands or rights in land in connection with any project."

"To issue revenue bonds to defray in whole or in part the project costs of any project."

House burglar takes loot valued at $2,516

Burglars looted the home of John Vacker, 2325 N.ameo Drive, on a variety of items valued at more than $2,516 last night, he reported Monday afternoon.

Missing were a .30-caliber rifle with five shell clips valued at $115, a .410 single shot gun and a .22-caliber single shot gun valued at $87, a tool chest containing mechanics tools valued at $1,300, three kitchen pictures valued at $30.

A stereo tape console valued at $495, a portable stereo tape player valued at $183, stereo tapes valued at $150, an assortment of glasses valued at $25, a metal ice bucket valued at $15, a 40-pound bear bow valued at $30, a quiver with arrows valued at $20, a feather arrangement valued at $45, two walnut ice crackers valued at $25 and an air pellet gun.

The massager parlor was re-opened June 23 without a city license. Sasyk, again saying he was following legal advice, commented, "The reopening was a sign to them they are going to fight this license business so we sought a new way."

The ordinance increases the price for a city license from the former $25 per year as a health club.

Health clubs are defined as "any establishment, place or stand used for the purpose of physical fitness, body exercise, body conditioning, body toning, body development, or massage, where money is charged directly or indirectly for admission to the service rendered in said establishment."

Health clubs are required to obtain a city license. The ordinance also requires that health clubs be licensed by the city.

Vote on Venice school tax rate

Voters of Venice School District 3 will vote Saturday on a proposition to increase the district's tax rate for education purposes from its present maximum of $2.08 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.25—a rise of .17.

Voting will begin at noon and end at 7 p.m. in two polling places. Voters living within the corporate limits of the city of Venice will ballot in the Venice High School gymnasium, 740 Broadway, and those living within the district but outside the limits of the city of Venice will vote at the Eagle Park Improvement Association building at 100 Hill St., Eagle Park Acres.

The present maximum rate of $2.08 for education purposes was set in October 1969 when the voters approved a 40-cent increase in the maximum rate. Because of declining property values, the $2.08 rate is producing approximately $689,000 in taxes, compared to $700,000 in 1969. The proposed new maximum of $2.25 would raise an estimated $1,061,000 in taxes.

School Board members say the rate increase is necessary to avoid bankruptcy of the district within another year or two and possible annexation of the Venice District to another school district as a means of stabilizing the district's financial condition.

Should the rate proposal be defeated in Saturday's ballot-

Sewer breaks plague Venice

By VALERIE EVENDEN

Press-Record Staff Writer

Ten breaks in the Venice sewer system resulting from an unprecedented high water table caused by the spring floods may cost an estimated $945,777 to repair, Venice City Council members were advised Tuesday night.

The approximate expenditure figure was quoted by Venice Street Superintendent Jay Maurer, who said the amount includes engineering fees. The total cost, involving repairs and manpower, is eligible for federal reimbursement through the flood damage program administered by the Office of Emergency Preparedness, he said.

Maurer speculated that repair costs to the sanitary sewer system may prove less than presently believed, and theorized that all breaks may not be located along the main sewer lines, but are originating from service connection points.

"But it's probably going to run us between $700,000 and $800,000 before we are finished," he added.

Other business occupying the Venice aldermen at this week's meeting included mobile home control, installation, relocation and repairs to street lights to upgrade and better illuminate the community, and purchase of two trucks, costing $13,240, for street department use.

Noting that federal funds are not available for televising (internal surveying) or cleaning sewer systems, Maurer said a major portion of the repair costs will involve well pointing, estimated at $1,600 a day, and pumping operations, at a rate of $900 a day.

"We'll know more after one or two repair jobs are completed," the official said, pointing out that most breaks known to date are only several feet from a tap-on point or adjacent to a manhole.

"The City of Venice has never had any sewer trouble in the past, even with the river stages going up and down, until this year. Just two weeks ago the water was only six feet below ground surface," Maurer stated.

He said a representative of the OEP and an engineer surveyed the sewer damage to him last week and he was told that reimbursement will be al-

Several long-haired kittens and calico cats will be available for adoption, according to Miss Patli Greco, project chairman, who is being assisted at the clinic by Misses Cindy Foster and Miss Betty Whitsell. All three are members of the Student APA Branch.

State checking food of Menard prisoners

A team of state food experts has been dispatched to Menard Penitentiary near Chester to survey the quality and service of the food served to inmates at the maximum-security institution, Illinois Department of Corrections Director Allyn R. Siefel announced Tuesday.

In addition to checking on the food service at Menard, the survey team will explore the potential for training inmates as food service personnel, Siefel said. "This fast-growing field will always have a need for new employees," he added, "and it should be an excellent field for ex-offenders in after they are released from institutionalization."

Tickets still available for "No No Nanette"

The Granite City Park District office still has seven tickets for the "No No Nanette" performance on Tuesday. Anyone interested in obtaining a reservation may do so at the park office, Benton street and Felling road, at a cost of $8.55 that includes the price of the bus transportation. Tickets without transportation cost $7.25. The bus will leave the ice rink promptly at 7 p.m.

Victory by Scott on plane fuel tax

Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott this week gained a final victory in the Illinois Supreme Court that will result in approximately $25 million in use taxes on aviation fuel being paid to the state.

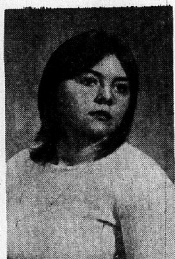

A ruling Monday by the court affirmed its previous decision of April 9, 1971, that fuel loaded by United Air Lines, Inc., in Illinois is fully taxable regardless of where it is purchased or used.

The U. S. Supreme Court which upheld Scott's argument that Illinois can levy the use tax on all fuel loaded in Illinois is constitutional.

The new Illinois Supreme Court ruling also applies to use taxes on fuel paid by other airlines and by trucking firms. The United Airlines protest fund contains about $10 million; the trucking firms' protest fund totals $5 million.

Other airlines have paid about $9 million to the state, which would have had to return the money if Scott had not won the case.

Old pneumatic clock turned down by museum

Anyone want an antique clock?

The Hahl pneumatic clock which served at Central School throughout the years has been refused as a gift by the Illinois State Museum.

A letter from Jim F. Paul of the museum said "We feel it would not be appropriate for our use in the restoration project at Dickson Mounds and have concluded that the interesting mechanism (using air pressure), although worthy of preservation, does not fit into our long-range plans for our clock collection (We are trying to pare it down a bit at the moment).

"We do strongly recommend that it be saved, which you indicated would be the case. If you feel unable to save this piece, the museum will take it to assure its preservation for future generations to enjoy."

At a meeting of the Granite City Board of Education Tuesday night, Supt. B. J. Davis suggested that the district give it to the museum for storage and preservation, that the district store the clock or have an appraisal made to determine its value and sell it at public auction.

Father of GC man dies after traffic crash
Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in an East St. Louis church for Edward Rakowski, 65, of 5 Santa Barbara Lane, Canteen Township in St. Clair County, the father of Edward Rakowski Jr. of Granite City. He also was the sister of Mrs. Helen Lupa of Madison.
Mr. Rakowski died in St. Elizabeth Hospital at Bellevue Tuesday night following a traffic accident in which he was injured Tuesday afternoon at Bellevue. He also leaves his widow, Mrs. Genevieve Rakowski, who was injured in the accident, and another sister.

Expansion of learning centers limited
A re-evaluation by Dale C. Rea, assistant to the superintendent, and other administrators showed that there is insufficient space at Lake for a center, and that suggestions for revision of building usage were unsatisfactory.
In a report to the board, Rea said one suggestion would have been to create a class of 36 to 38 children at the fourth grade level, but it would present an undesirable teaching situation. He said three other alternatives would have required extensive shifting of classes without releasing suitable space for a learning center.
A fifth alternative was to use a portable classroom from another school, but it was agreed that relocation of the building was not practical.
The four new learning centers will bring to eight the number of centers in the district, with plans to expand by four schools each year until all are covered, pending surveys of results and financial conditions.
It was pointed out that the cost of each center exceeds $14,000.
Board member Carl Macios commented that "in the future learning centers may be eliminated for financial reasons."
Member George Moore added that "There will be a period of re-evaluation to determine if we can expand the program. We might expand depending on finances and other variables."
Supt. B. J. Davis noted that some of the problems discussed with the Lake parents were being corrected this summer, including the school roof for which a contract was let and lighting, not only at Lake but at Maryville and Prather Junior High School.
The board authorized continuation of the throat culture program at a budgeted cost of about $2,500. A report was being corrected this summer, including the school roof for which a contract was let and lighting, not only at Lake but at Maryville and Prather Junior High School.
Also authorized was continuation of the home and hospital instruction program. According to Effitt, "Every child who has participated in good faith has been able to stay educationally with their classmates and to keep up with the knowledge, we haven't had a failure." Teacher salaries for the homebound program totaled $10,500.
The board heard a report that bids for construction of the Alton Area Career Development Center will be due at 3 p.m. July 12 at the offices of the Capital Development Board in Springfield.
The dollar amount that will be spent on the project is a little more than $5,000,000, the advisory council for the center reported, and in the fall advisory committees are to determine the curricula and specific equipment to be purchased within limits of a $1,350,000 equipment budget.
An application for an extension of time to comply with the health and safety code was reported by Dr. Campbell, who said that work remains on 15 buildings, but of 44 recommendations, 323 have been completed at a cost of $328,018. All recommendations have been completed on the Pre-School Center, Stallings and Neddinghaus Schools.
The board decided to obtain student football accident insurance from American Youth Co. at a $35 rate. About 245 boys are expected to be covered.
Location and housing for two special education services for handicapped children were provided by McKinley School will be used for the emotionally disturbed program.
Two teachers and two aides are to be employed. It was reported that children services at the Special Education Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have been terminated.
A gift of $267 in instructional audio-visual materials at Lake School was accepted from the PTA there.
The board approved requests by Granite City police for use of Firehead McKinley and Washington School playgrounds for an Officer Friendly bike rodeo July 17-19, by several churches to use the GCPS South gym from July 19-24 for religious services, by the 25-Year Club of American Street Foundries for the high school cafeteria on Nov. 23.

Venice century
fort-weekly route from the East Coast.
The trail terminated one-third of a mile north of the site where the Venice elevator was to be constructed.
The National Way also was known as "Old Rock Road" and is now the route of Broadway.
Venice became significant as a meeting place for drivers and traders on their way to St. Louis, and as a crossing point on the river.
Anthony's Ferry service proved unequal to the demands of traffic and in 1826, Matthew Kerr, a St. Louis merchant for whom the Kerr Island area of Venice was named, began operating the ferry boat "Brooklyn."
This vessel was powered by horses on a treadmill. Later, traffic from Venice to St. Louis was carried by a steamboat called "Little Jim."
A young Army engineer, Lieutenant Robert E. Lee, who directed the building of an ill-fated dike extending the national road from the mainland to Kerr Island.
Lee two decades later led the Confederate armies against the Union in the Civil War. It was known in the North, or the War between the States, as "the battle of the Wilderness."
The fill and bridge erected here under Lee's supervision were carried off by the flooding Mississippi.
The bridge was rebuilt, but the project was abandoned after another flood destroyed the second bridge in 1851.
Since 1903, the river has not reached the Quad-Cities, but during the 1800s a series of five floods plagued Venice.
The initial settlement included two hotels, two grocery stores, three general stores and two blacksmith shops.
A flood in 1844 reduced the town to two buildings, one being the first brick structure.
Venice was rebuilt again after a flood in 1881.
A levee was built but in 1883 five feet of water swept through the streets. The problem was ended after the 1888 and 1903 floods prompted erection of a higher levee.
The name of Venice was provided by Dr. Campbell with the help of Charles F. Stamps.
The floods during the early years led to naming the settlement after Venice, Italy, where streets of water are traversed in boats.
At the time the village government was started, the population stood at 600. The first action of the new village board of trustees was to authorize grading and macadamizing the streets.
A period of prosperity and commercial growth began in the 1870s.
The Venice elevator was erected in 1871 and had reached a capacity of 3,000,000 baskets of grain by 1925, when the elevator was destroyed by fire.
The Madison County Light & Power Co. plant replaced the elevator at the site. Nearby, the Union Electric Co. power plant now is operating.
Retail businesses included a number of neighborhood stores.
Railroad lines which converge in the Venice area were given impetus in 1880 by opening of the Meramec Railroad.
Two large rail yards and several railroad right-of-ways were created.
Five village presidents served during the period from 1873 to 1887. They were Henry Robinson, Francis McCambridge, Theodore Selb, Thomas P. McFee and James Brannell.
Venice assumed the city form of government on March 16, 1887.
Brannell continued as the top official after incorporation as a city, his title changing from president to mayor.
There have been ten mayors, including:
James Brannell, 1887-88.
Dr. John W. Scott, 1888-1911.
Dr. John E. Lee Sr., 1911-13.
John Selb, 1913-17.
Dr. J. E. Lee Sr. again, from 1917 until his death on Dec. 8, 1944.
Arthur Schmitt, 1944-45.
Edward Hagnauer, 1945-46.
Schmitt again after Hagnauer's death in 1946, serving until 1947.
Harry T. Hartman, 1947 to 1953.
Frank Reidelberger Sr., 1953-56.
Leo Davany, 1956-57, after Mayor Reidelberger's death.
And the original Dr. Lee's son, Dr. John E. Lee Jr., from 1957 until the present. The father and son have combined served as Venice mayor for more than 47 years.
Historic churches of Venice include St. Mary's Catholic Church, founded in 1883; the Venice Methodist Church, 1876; and Otto H. Grosse, 76, dies in Dallas, Tex.

Otto H. Grosse, 76, of 10106 Cromwell Drive, Dallas, Tex., died of cancer Wednesday at a hospital in Dallas. He was a member of the American Steel Foundries, Mr. Grosse retired on Jan. 31, 1962. He was a member of the firm's 25-Year Club and an active member of Masonic Lodge 877, AFAM.
He served for several years as associate guardian of Bethel 43, International Order of Job's Daughters, and as a member of the local Protestant Welfare Association governing board.
Mr. Grosse was active in the affairs of the First United Presbyterian Church of Granite City, having served as a trustee and church elder.
He also was involved in many civic activities and for a number of years served as a Republican precinct committeeman.
Mr. Grosse was born in Essen, Germany, came to the United States as a child and was reared in the vicinity of Sharon, Pa.
He and his wife, Anna, who survived, moved from Granite City to Peoria about nine years ago. The couple lived in the Chicago area before moving to Dallas five years ago.
Beside his wife, Anna, Mr. Grosse is survived by a son, Otto H. Grosse Jr., of Great Falls, Mont.; a daughter, Mrs. Paul (Helen) Parmley of Dallas, Tex.; a brother, Erich F. Grosse of Jackson, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Fred (Tillie) Cecock and Mrs. John (Emma) Grosse, both of Sharon, Pa.; and six grandchildren.
Private funeral services will be held Friday in Dallas, followed by cremation.

Child, 4, struck by alderman's auto
Seven Martin, 4, the son of Larry Martin, 319 Iowa St., was injured when he was struck by the car of Madison Ward Alderman Richard Klamer on Madison Avenue near 13th Street in Madison on Wednesday.
Klamer said the boy ran in front of his car and he was unable to stop before striking him.
The child was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital where he was admitted with injuries to both knees and to his chest.

All health clubs are required to have shower rooms, locker rooms and appropriate sanitary facilities.
All employees must show health certificates from licensed physicians showing they have passed physical examinations.
The ordinance states, "It shall be unlawful to own, conduct, give, exhibit or perform any immoral, immodest or indecent massages, treatments or other exhibitions, shows or amusements under any license issued."
The ordinance provides fines of from $25 to $50 per day for operating a health club without a city license and fines of from $5 to $100 per day for violating provisions of the ordinance.
The Venice Baptist Church, 1885, the latter relocated from Calhoun Street to Klein Street.
The present Venice Methodist Church is the fourth structure on the site. The original church in 1880 and a second building was swept away by the 1903 flood.
The existing church on Broadway was established after a third Methodist building was destroyed in a fire Feb. 22, 1912.
One of the earliest Venice residents, Father Peter Kaenders, was pastor of St. Mark's from its origin until shortly before his death in 1921.
The church and school were relocated from Third and Granville Streets in 1883 to the present complex on Broadway and Sixth Street.
It was Father Kaenders who supervised establishment of St. Elizabeth Hospital in 1911; St. Mark's parish bought the Evangelical Lutheran Hospital, and he remained active in both the church and hospital until retiring.
He retired in March 1921, two months after St. Elizabeth Hospital was sold to its present owners, the Sisters of Divine Providence.

wood for money expended to be on repairs and manpower. The street department official reminded council members that the city will have "to come up with the money when the contract is let."

He said the funds will not be reimbursed until an audit is made by federal authorities and added, "So we better try to keep the costs down."

New sewer breaks have been reported in an alley between Washington and Jefferson, east of Klein Street; at Ashbrook and Hampton; Ashbrook and Kerr, west of Second Street and between Second and Third streets.

In response to a question concerning repairs to alleys, Third Ward Alderman Louis Ratliff said all field work has been completed in the surveying portion of the project. Results of the survey showed alleys to be "in very good condition, generally," Maurer informed the council.

Further upgrading would cost about $1,400 in order to grade and surface with asphalt and chippings, he said.

The street superintendent recommended that additional alley work be deferred until repairs have been completed to sewer line breaks.

sued after the subject of permits for mobile homes was introduced.

Venice City Attorney Harry E. Hartman told the aldermen that in his opinion new regulations or ordinances are not required, if the basic housing code already in effect is enforced.

"Unless a mobile home complies with the basic housing code, including space requirements, properly set on a foundation and also meets sanitary regulations, I believe we have got all we need to say to no one seeking a permit," the attorney said.

He further stated that mobile homes are required to be fastened to a foundation and must meet the minimum building code with five-foot easements from each side of a property line, water, sewer and electrical lines must be inspected and approved and the mobile unit must be placed to conform to frontal property lines.

"I don't think we need a new ordinance," Hartman said, "all we need is a hard headed attitude in enforcing the basic code." He added that living standards to be maintained in the unit must also be approved by an inspector before occupancy.

Building Inspector William Griggs suggested giving a set of the housing code guidelines to each applicant seeking a mobile home permit.

Alderman John Ervin questioned insurance coverage carried by a homeowner if a mobile home is located on an adjacent lot. The council member indicated that residents of a ward were apprehensive about mobile homes being located there.

Hartman said, "Unless you establish a zoning code, I don't see how you can stop them, as they comply with the existing building code. If you enforce the housing and building codes and they can meet requirements there is nothing you can do to keep them in my opinion."

Present at the meeting was Richard Foley, a Venice resident who has acquired a 6-year lease on a 24-acre tract on Herr Island and is seeking permission to place a riding area to train horses at the site and has already planted corn.

Unless he can move the mobile home this week from its present location, Foley said he will be required to pay an additional $25 transportation fee. Alderman Ervin suggested abiding the request "until we are firm on the requirements, or else this thing is going to rushroom."

Mayor John E. Lee noted the mobile home question "has been hanging fire for almost four months." He appointed a committee, composed of Aldermen Ratliff, Ervin, Lloyd Hatterston and Hank Svezia, to research the problem and report to the next council session.

However, it was decided that Griggs will inspect the Foley mobile home this week with the possibility of allowing the unit to be parked at the proposed site without being occupied until a permit is granted.

Benjamin Honorable, a member of the Venice Township Board, said approval has been obtained from a business concern to develop a field, near college Avenue into a mini-bike riding area, providing the donors clear the area.

He asked the council to loan its equipment to help prepare the area for use and was granted permission if insurance is secured to cover the city of Venice and its employees working on the project.

Ridge completes nurse training

Michael Ridge, son of Granite City Patrolman and Mrs. Raymond "Mike" Ridge, will be graduated Friday from the St. Louis Municipal School of Nursing.

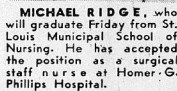

Commencement exercises will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Kiel Opera House, St. Louis. He will be among 48 students receiving diplomas in the ceremonies.

During the nurse training program, Ridge was the recipient of a scholarship grant from St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary for two consecutive years.

He has accepted a position as a surgical staff nurse at Homer G. Phillips Hospital in St. Louis. He also plans to enter anesthesia school early next spring.

As a student nurse at the St. Louis school, the young man served as recording secretary for the Missouri State Student Nurse Association attending the National Student Nurse Association's convention in Dallas, Tex., as a state representative.

Ridge also served as a class and student council officer of the school and was an active member of the yearbook staff.

Lawn party for Marianna Oliver

Mr. and Mrs. Lennie Oliver entertained during the weekend at an outdoor party honoring their daughter, Marianna Oliver, on her third birthday.

Among the guests at the Oliver home, 2547 E. 24th St., were the honoree's brother and sister, Joseph and Dianne, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Bell and Mrs. John Bell, Miss Pat Dineen, Mrs. Dineen, Mrs. Don Knowland and daughter, Melinda, and Mrs. John Kains and son, John Michael.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Walter J. and Mrs. Paul Boettich, all of Livingston, Ill.; Mrs. Paul Rink and daughter, Angie, of Edwardsville; and Mrs. Robert Murray of Alton. Cake and punch were served prior to the informal hazzore opening her presents.

Mrs. Roderick marks 80th year

Mrs. Agnes Roderick observed her 80th birthday at a buffet dinner and reception given this week at the Anderson Recreation Hall by her six children.

Hosting the event were Mrs. Mary Boyer, Mrs. Nella Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hanson, Mrs. Benny Hanson and children and Mr. and Mrs. Everett McGraw, all from Missouri.

A deposit of $200 was added to the Lowe fund at Granite City Trust & Savings Bank from a benefit car wash held during the weekend at Parkway 48-Car Wash firm on Namecki Road. The fund now totals $1,150, a family spokesman reported.

Madison school board to fill Kemp vacancy

The Madison School Board on Tuesday accepted the resignation of a board member, Rhodes Kemp, who resigned for health reasons and because of a disagreement with other board members on desegregation procedures.

Kemp's resignation was not accepted at a previous meeting because it had not been signed. A vacancy on the board was declared, giving the remaining board members 30 days in which to appoint a replacement for Kemp.

The board voted to discontinue baccalaureate services at Madison High School. Principal Richard L. Brown said the services are being phased out by most school districts and noted a lack of interest in the event this year at MHS.

Simon Devine Welding Co., Inc., St. Louis, was granted a $300 contract to make repairs to a boiler at Madison Junior High School. The company was chosen without bids because it had done earlier work on the same boiler.

Luther Williams, a custodian, was granted a leave of absence without pay from July 20 to Aug. 10 for a vacation period.

Permission to use Dunbar School was granted to the concerned Parents of West Madison for a meeting at 7 p.m. Monday.

law in 1972 and signed into law by Ogilvie in December. The bi-county district covers approximately 96 square miles. The St. Clair County trustees—Ronald Wilson, board president, Jack Scoville and Charles Meyers—filed suit to challenge the constitutionality of the dividing legislation.

Eberstedt and Robinson obtained the circuit court order to restrict spending by the St. Clair County trustees until the issue was settled.

St. Clair County Circuit Judge Robert Garen ruled at Belleville last February that the law was unconstitutional. The ruling was appealed to the Supreme Court by Eberstedt and Robinson.

The high court, in its decision written by Chief Justice Robert Underwood, said the law constituted "special legislation" since it applied only to the East Side Levee and Sanitary District. Such legislation is prohibited by the 1970 Illinois constitution, the decision said.

The court said, however, that a "general law" that provides for division of levee districts anywhere in the state could be passed.

GC Legion wins 7-1, fight stops V-M game

A fight between a spectator and two East St. Louis fighters proceeded darkness forced the halt of an American Legion baseball game between Venice-Madison Post 307 and East St. Louis Post 53 Wednesday at Lee Park.

East St. Louis was ahead 10-5 in the last of the seventh inning and Post 307 had a rally going, having already scored one run and plenty of chances left with men on base when a fracas occurred between the spectator and the visiting center fielder.

Another Post 307 player entered into the incident. By the time calm was restored, it was too dark to resume the game and it was called by mutual agreement. The players of both teams left the field shaking in anger.

In another game yesterday, Granite City Post 113 defeated Belleville 7-1 at Wilson Park, while in Monday games, Venice-Madison lost to Fairview Heights and Post 113 was blanked at Carlyle in a non-league game.

Monday night's action saw the Venice-Madison Post 307 defeated by Fairview Heights 7-3 in Lee Park.

Venice-Madison had four hits and three errors while Fairview Heights had nine hits and three errors.

The Post 307 hits came off the bats of Pete Fecurka, Thad Lakata, Kevin Warner and Ivan Cwain, all with one singles.

Lossing pitcher was John Henrich and the winning pitcher was Junes who went the distance.

The turning point of the game against Venice-Madison came in the sixth inning when the team committed the three errors. Fairview Heights scored three unearned runs to boost its lead to 6-2 at that point.

Venice-Madison scored one run in the first inning, one in fourth and one in the seventh. Fairview Heights picked up two runs in the second inning, one in the third, three in the sixth and one in the seventh.

In non-league play Monday night at Carlyle, Post 113 was shut out 9-0.

Lossing pitcher for GC was starter Mike Stanton who was relieved in the third inning by Randy Sturdivant. Picking up the win in going all the way for Carlyle was Timmons.

Granite City was held to four hits and committed three errors while Carlyle had eight hits and one error.

Picking up hits for Granite City were Jack Scarborough, Randy Sturdivant and Tim Burns, each with a single, and Mike Martinez, who tripled.

Figuring decisively in the win for Carlyle was the first baseman, Walker, who played a good defensive game and who also blasted a three-run home run in the first inning off of Stanton.

Carlyle also scored one run in the second inning and five runs in the fifth.

Granite City will play again tonight at 8 p.m. at Collinsville and will host East St. Louis Post 378 at Wilson Park at 6 p.m. Saturday with the game of June 18 to be finished. GC then will journey to Venice on Sunday to play Post 307 at 2 p.m.

Venice-Madison's next games are against Highland at 6 p.m. today and Edwardsville at 2 p.m. Saturday, both at Lee Park.

GC Park Board seeks state funding for golf course

The Granite City Park Board will make formal application to the Illinois Department of Conservation for funds to develop a golf course or purchase an existing facility.

Action on the proposal, under consideration for some time, was taken at a regular meeting last night.

In other business, park commissioners awarded a contract to construct a maintenance building in Wilson Park to R. W. Becker of Hamel, a general contracting firm, who submitted a low bid of $89,250.

A contract also was awarded to Elmer Crook of Edwardsville on a low bid of $21,850 to brick an opening created by removal of a large overhead door and replace it with a conventional size door at the Namekiki Recreation Center.

Also at last night's session a resolution was adopted formally changing the vote canvass of the April 17 election in which Robert Patrick and Mike Zimmerer defeated Clarence Baunmyer.

Work on the new maintenance building, to be located adjacent to the Wilson Park office-garage complex, is expected to start in three weeks and be completed in 90 days.

Also at last night's session a resolution was adopted formally changing the vote canvass of the April 17 election in which Robert Patrick and Mike Zimmerer defeated Clarence Baunmyer.

“We will continue to operate under the policies we have followed for the past 22 years. Our customers will not be affected,” the board pointed out.

The board pointed out that property in the Venice district is assessed at 90% of fair cash value, and that on this basis a house valued at $10,000, assessed at $9,000 would cost the property owner an additional $600 per year for the $120 rate increase.

“The average assessment for houses in the Venice district is in the $3,000 to $4,000 range,” the board said. “This means that if the rate is increased per $100 valuation would cost the average homeowner between $36 and $48 per year. This is about $3 to $4 per month, or less than the price of two packages of cigarettes per day.”

“We urge you to vote yes on June 30.”

Zimring firm to become site of Interstate United Madison is to become the site of the offices of the Interstate United Corp., the four largest food and vending company in the United States.

The company has an option to purchase Zimring Vending Co., Caine Drive, Madison, and the present Zimring building on the Stephen Maers Industrial Park.

About five employees will be transferred to the new company spokesman said yesterday.

Ben Zimring, president of Zimring Vending, will remain here as manager-consultant for at least five years, the spokesman said.

Zimring explained the company is to become a wholly-owned subsidiary of Interstate United but will retain its present name.

There will be no change of personnel or company operations,” Zimring said, adding,

“We will continue to operate under the policies we have followed for the past 22 years. Our customers will not be affected,” the board pointed out.

The board pointed out that property in the Venice district is assessed at 90% of fair cash value, and that on this basis a house valued at $10,000, assessed at $9,000 would cost the property owner an additional $600 per year for the $120 rate increase.

“The average assessment for houses in the Venice district is in the $3,000 to $4,000 range,” the board said. “This means that if the rate is increased per $100 valuation would cost the average homeowner between $36 and $48 per year. This is about $3 to $4 per month, or less than the price of two packages of cigarettes per day.”

DELTA QUEEN CLUBHOUSE being built near Dixon this summer as a million-dollar tribute to the famous paddlewheel steamer Delta Queen. It will feature recreational facilities.

Delta Queen clubhouse being built near Dixon

Richard G. Neumann, president of Neuland Development Inc., has unveiled plans for a million-dollar Delta Queen clubhouse which is to be built as a tribute to the famous paddlewheel steamer Delta Queen, America's only surviving overnight passenger riverboat.

Ground-breaking ceremonies that took place this summer at The New Landing for the Delta Queen, the recreational community near Dixon built to commemorate the historic and colorful riverboat era.

Care will be taken in the construction of the Delta Queen Clubhouse to re-create the feeling of the original "Queen." The riverboat replica will feature a large swimming pool, sauna baths, a hydrotherapy whirlpool bath, complete gymnasium and shower facilities for members. An archery range and bowling lanes will provide additional recreational opportunities.

Added convenience facilities will include a gift shop, cocktail lounge, card room, game rooms with pool and ping pong tables, and meeting rooms with kitchenette for parties.

The surrounding clubhouse complex will feature a sports core with courts for tennis enthusiasts, an outdoor swimming pool, paddle tennis court and outdoor ice rink for summer and winter skating.

The Delta Queen Clubhouse, designed by architects Larson & Darby Inc., Rockford, will be constructed on the waters of Steamboat Lake at The New Landing by Lindquist Construction Co. of Dixon.

Venice Technical Center phaseout still uncertain

The extent of a phase-out of programs at the Venice Lincoln Technical Center will depend to a great extent upon the outcome of hearings in Washington this week on legislative amendments that would restore federal funds under which the center has been operating.

The Venice Board of Education was told in a special meeting Monday night, K. Duane Rankin, director of the Venice Lincoln center, told the board that legislation providing funds for continuing the adult education programs hopefully will be passed by the Senate and sent to the Joint House-Senate Committee for approval. Efforts are being made to restore the funds before the end of the federal fiscal year on Saturday.

Unless funds are restored, the programs at the center in Venice would be phased out by the end of August, according to School Superintendent John Pier. There are no classes at the center now.

The state of Illinois is expected to provide some funds from a $1.8 allotment provided by order of Governor Dan Walker, but the extent of the available money and its effect upon the Venice operations have not been fully determined.

Present federal changes have eliminated funds under which the Venice center operated on a budget of approximately $420,000 a year, the Venice board was told. Adult education centers are financed by 75% federal grants and 25% state grants, Rankin said.

The board also agreed to hire Sylvester Dulgeroff, architect, to work with school officials to comply with the Illinois Fire and Safety Code in both the grade school and high school.

Leo Davinroy, president of the board, announced a special meeting of the board with representatives of the teachers' federation will be held on July 9 to name teachers who will be rehired for the fall term.

YMCA activities for next week announced

Supervised recreation programs will be held at the YMCA pool next week except Wednesday, July 4, when all "Y" facilities will be closed.

Scheduled youth recreation swims from 10 to 10:45 a.m., women's recreation swims from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m., swim-for-fitness program from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., and open swim for families, high school students and adult men and women from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

The women's slim gym, men's health club, weight room, gym and other physical education facilities will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The program office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for registration in programs, primarily the second session of the progressive swimming lessons which starts July 8.

School psychology conference begins

A regional conference in school psychology is being held today and Friday at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Meetings began in the King Room of the SIUE Religious Center at 9 a.m. today.

All area practicing school psychologists and students in school psychology, as well as others who have expressed interest in the field, have been invited to the conference. Anthony J. Traxler, assistant professor of psychology at SIUE, said.

Sponsored by the SIUE department of psychology, the event is expected to become an annual affair. He outlined the objectives for the conference as:

"To foster liaison and closer working relationships among practicing school psychologists, university trainers of school psychologists, students interested in entering the profession, and leaders of state and national organizations representing school psychologists; and to review new programs of prevention and early intervention through consultation by school psychologists."

Castings Division to stay general months

Hospital Auxiliary awards 4 scholarships

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Press-Record Staff Writer

St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary officers this week announced the selection of four outstanding young people to receive the auxiliary's scholarship grants for the current year.

The award winners represent each section of the Quad-City area, the officers noted. They are Miss Toni Eck of Venice, Charles Richard Dew of the rural Granite City area, Miss Susan Poznanovich of Madison and Miss Deborah Gargac of Granite City.

Each scholarship is in the amount of $300 and is given on a one-year renewable basis, contingent upon the student's sustained achievement and continued need, Mrs. James Worthen, chairman of the scholarship committee, explained.

The awards are presented annually and are available to Illinois residents enrolled in programs of study for any of the allied health fields, including nursing, medical record library science, dietetics, x-ray technology, medical social work, occupational or physical therapy, medical technology and inhalation therapy.

Recipients are free to select the school of their choice, which may be located outside the state of Illinois. However, the institution must be accredited or recognized as a legitimate school, Mrs. Worthen said.

The need of financial assistance and scholarship qualifications are the primary basis on which recipients are chosen, she said.

At a meeting of the hospital auxiliary the 1973 grant winners were formally presented by the committee chairman, Sister Mary Thomas, St. Elizabeth Hospital administrator, Mrs. Margaret Lee, auxiliary president and the organization's general membership.

Miss Deborah Gargac, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gargac, 3229 Colgate Ave., is attending Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, where she is enrolled in the nursing program. She was the recipient of a scholarship grant last year from the hospital auxiliary.

The young woman, who plans to continue her education until she earns a master's degree in administration or the education field, believes teachers and supervisors are badly needed in the nursing area.

She has served as a Candy Stripper at the local hospital and is active in the East Bank Players theatre group and March of Dimes campaigns. She has three sisters, ages 17, 9 and 7 years.

Miss Susan Poznanovich is starting her second year of nursing studies at DePaul Hospital School of Nursing in St. Louis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Poznanovich, 1611 Elizabeth St., Madison.

A graduate of Granite City High School, Miss Poznanovich has been a volunteer Pink Lady at St. Elizabeth Hospital. She also has worked as a dental assistant to aid her in financing her current training.

Miss Poznanovich successfully resumed her studies despite sustaining serious injuries in an automobile accident which disabled her for nearly six months.

One of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Dew of Rural Route Two, the male scholarship winner is enrolled in the nursing program at Deaconess School of Nursing in St. Louis.

Charles Richard Dew was graduated this month from Granite City High School. During his senior year, the youth also participated in the Operating Room Technicians program at St. Elizabeth Hospital, a course of instruction which he believes furnished the background training and directed him towards his future career in the medical field.

Miss Toni Eck, a daughter of Mrs. Margaret Eck, 1314 Robin St., Venice, is a 1973 graduate of Venice High School, where she served on the Student Council. She is enrolled as a student nurse at Barnes Hospital School of Nursing in St. Louis.

As a high school student, Miss Eck was active in school affairs and received the Crisco Outstanding Homemaking Student Award in 1971 and achievement awards in health, civics, band and yearbook programs. She has three brothers and sisters, ages 17, 16 and 14 years old.

St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary has awarded scholarship grants to young people in need of assistance to begin or continue training in the nursing and allied health fields for many years, Mrs. Worthen said.

Soroptimists aid 'mobile meals'

Mrs. Elma Hoover of Granite City served as installing officer for the Soroptimist Club of Metro-East at the Round Table Restaurant, Highway 157, Monday evening.

Officers installed for the 1973-74 year were Mrs. Paul Stratton, president; Mrs. Roscoe Smith, president-elect; Mrs. George Crain, vice-president; Mrs. Julius Gasawski and Mrs. Edwin Price, secretaries; Mrs. Mark Moreton, treasurer; Miss Lila Garcia and Mrs. James Shoboda, directors; Mrs. Warren Jordan and Mrs. Oscar Schreiber, delegates; and Mrs. Fred Huskey and Mrs. Howard Moore, alternate delegates.

Mrs. Robert Matthews is the retiring president.

The Mobile Meals project in Granite City received a $300 donation from the club. Mrs. Marie Wittke of the Protestant Welfare Association, which sponsors the meal program, accepted the check for the project.

This contribution was a portion of the $3,375 given to charitable organizations at the meeting from proceeds of the annual Wurmamarket given by the Soroptimist Club.

Another Quad-Cityan honored at the meeting was Miss Allen Hendrickson of Madison Senior High School. Miss Hendrickson was one of three youths receiving awards of savings bonds for winning the area Youth Citizenship Program.

Daniel and David Francis of Belleville Township West High School were the other winners. Austin Lewis of Granite City

SPECIAL PRICE

Special prices during June 1-8 must be part of 'freeze' level

Leon C. Green, district director of Internal Revenue for Central and Southern Illinois, discussing the Presidential Freeze Program, said this week that the previously established exemption of small businesses with less than 60 employees is now suspended as well as all approved price increases which had not been put into effect by June 8.

Green said firms computing their freeze price, based on sales during June 1 through June 8, may not exclude any temporary special sale, deal or allowance in effect during the freeze base period.

He also outlined the freeze price listing and posting policy which became effective at 11:59 a.m. June 24.

Under the new policy, each seller must maintain freeze price records for all commodities and services at the location where pricing decisions with respect to those items are ordinarily made, and they must be made available upon request to IRS representatives.

Retail food chains with sales of $25 million or more and deriving 50% or more of total sales from food have the option of posting their freeze price information either:

(a) In a complete price book listing all items, prominently displayed and readily accessible to consumers (i.e., cannot be located in manager's office); or

(b) On signs in each department for the 40 items which had the highest dollar sales in the last fiscal year ended before June 13, 1973, or for those items which accounted for 50% of sales in that department, whichever is less.

Signs must be posted within each of the following departments:

Produce (including paper products, soaps and detergents).

Dairy products.

Sundries (including beauty and beauty aids, nylons).

Freeze price information on all other items must be furnished to a consumer within 48 hours of written request as outlined below.

GC Library schedules story hour programs

The July 3 program will be for preschoolers through second grade and will start at 3 p.m.

The July 13 program will be for grades three through five and will start at 10 a.m.

Waive impact statement

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will waive the requirement of an environmental impact statement for construction of the Granite City secondary sewage treatment plant. Announcement of the waiver was made by the construction grants branch of the EPA at Chicago.

HERBS ARE STUDIED BY THORNGATE GARDEN CLUB

Mrs. Mary Markham was hostess to the June meeting of the Thorngate Garden Club. A dessert luncheon was served, and each guest received a flower molded from plastic spoons and handcrafted by Mrs. Markham.

Mrs. Frances Polley offered the invocation and the business session was called to order by Mrs. Betty King, president. The day had been designated "Herb Day," and the program was a study of herbs by Mrs. Patricia Polley and Mrs. Helen Polley.

The program dealt with different beliefs and uses regarding 20 different herbs, including tales of their "magic" in the past and suggestions for modern day seasoning.

Mrs. Marilyn Deatherage read a poem on herbs, and plans were made for the club to entertain patients at the Alton State Hospital July 10. Thanks were received for a party given at the Professional Shelter Home in Troy.

Those present included Mesdames Lillian Delps and Clara Schullinger and Miss Jean Bethel. Guests for the day were Mrs. Jean Lux and the Mrs. Pearl Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin A. Thomas and son, Timmy, 2542 Woodlawn Ave., have returned from a vacation in Houston, Tex. While there, they visited Bush Park, the Astroworld and Astrodomes. On the return trip, the family stopped in Galveston and toured the Sea-Arama there.

In addition, all other sellers must post in a prominent place at each place of business a sign announcing the availability of freeze price information. The sign should measure at least 22 inches by 28 inches and should contain the following information:

"Information regarding the lawful freeze price for any item sold by this store may be obtained by filling in the form available at (specify location) and handing it to (fill in). You will receive a prompt answer by mail."

Sellers also are required to make available in at least one location at each place of business, freeze price information request forms and are required to respond to freeze price requests within 48 hours.

The form should contain the following:

Item.
Price.
Style number.
Department where sold.
Name.
Address.

Green also said firms or individuals desiring additional information — or wanting to lodge a complaint — may call the Economic Stabilization Branch at 217-525-4380, Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4:45 p.m.

Swim lessons to start Monday at Arlington

Swimming lessons will start Monday at Arlington Golf Club pool, with beginner and intermediate instruction to be offered during a two-week course. Jim Harsh pool manager, announced this week.

Classes also will be available for persons interested in advance swimming and diving instruction, Harsh said. Sessions will take place Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. until noon and from noon until 12:30 p.m.

Students may register at the pool or by calling 877-2035. The program is open to the public and a $10 pool fee will be charged, Harsh said.

Bakalis sues to obtain $2 million federal funds

State School Supt. Michael J. Bakalis is suing the Nixon administration for release of $2 million in federal school funds for Illinois.

In a news conference this week, Bakalis said he has taken the action because the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) officials have refused to carry out legal responsibilities by not distributing funds authorized and appropriated by Congress.

It is unfortunate that court action must be sought to have federal officials uphold the law," Bakalis said, "but after almost a year of discussion, with no resulting action, there is no other recourse."

In the suit filed Monday, Bakalis names HEW Secretary Casper A. Weinberger and acting Commissioner of Education John R. Otina as defendants. The action seeks a mandatory injunction forcing HEW to release impounded National Defense Education (NDEA) Title III funds approved for Illinois.

It is now pending before the Federal District Court for Northern Illinois.

NDEA Title III funds are used to improve instruction in "critical curriculum areas" such as math, science, history and English. The aid goes directly to school districts for the purchase of equipment and materials and to conduct teacher training workshops.

"These are not frill funds," Bakalis said. "They are important to fulfill the most important function of education—improving the method of teaching children."

"We are not asking for more money. We do not have our hands out. We are simply asking the court to do what the administration has failed to do: release the money to which Illinois is legally entitled."

Bakalis said the withholding of funds has caused many Illinois schools to curtail "important and needed programs."

Park District trip to Six Flags July 14

An excursion to "Six Flags Over Mid-America" is scheduled for July 14 by the Granite City Park District, with seats available on a 4-passenger bus for persons already holding Six Flags tickets, or those wishing to purchase admission tickets from the park district.

Harold Brown, superintendent, said today.

Cost of roundtrip transportation is $2.75 per person. Admission fees are $5.85 per adult and $4.50 per child. Children under 14 years of age are required to be accompanied by an adult, Brown said.

Tickets and seating space will be allocated on a first-come, first-served basis, the park official said.

Body found, believed brother of GC women

A body believed to be that of Edward Lash, 30, of St. Louis, came to the surface of Carlyle Lake near Carlyle at 7 a.m. today. Mr. Lash has been missing since a boating accident at 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Mr. Lash is the brother of Mrs. Gerald (Ruth) Sugg, 2130 Hamilton Drive, Mrs. Glen (Naomi) Redding, 4610 D'Lynn Drive, and Mrs. George (Sue) Busch, 4600 D'Lynn Drive. His motorboat and another carrying five persons from Belleville, collided on the lake about 150 yards from shore, according to witnesses. An unidentified man in the boat with Mr. Lash left after the accident, they said.

A search for the body had been continuing until this morning. The Clinton County Sheriff's Office is conducting an investigation.

Mr. Lash, a former resident of Greenville, leaves his widow, Carol, and one son.

The victim is Orville Gibson who told deputies that he had picked up a white man in St. Louis for a trip to Alton and while enroute the passenger asked him to turn right onto Bend Road to enable the fare to visit a brother.

Gibson said the man displayed a handgun, took the money, ordered him to lie down on the grass and left with the taxicab, headed south on Route 203.

The taxi was recovered in Cahokia where police held a man in custody. No charge has been filed. The robber was described as being 35 to 40 and wearing a light brown shirt and dark trousers.

Disease strikes all levels of society

SPRINGFIELD — Harry has a small blister in a most private place.

Phyllis has a small pimple in the same area, but it doesn't hurt and she ignores it.

Allan has an open sore, but it's internal and he doesn't know he has it.

Marilyn has a rash on her hands and a little fever.

Sam notices some of his hair is falling out.

All of them have syphilis. None of them knows it.

With luck, some of them will be notified by the person who infected them that they have been exposed and should be tested.

With luck, some of them may have to have a blood test for some other reason — premarital, during an employment physical, or admission to a hospital for some other cause — and the disease will be discovered.

Without luck, Harry may go blind. Phyllis may become convinced she is Marie Antoinette and die insane.

Allan may have to quit work because of serious heart disease. Marilyn may give birth to a crippled, stillborn child. Sam may be crippled by agonizing syphilitic arthritis.

It shouldn't have to depend on luck. When a new strain of flu is likely to strike, most people make sure they know what to expect, and what to do if they become ill.

Veneral diseases are an epidemic in the United States today, but too often they go unreported, and too few people know they may have been exposed to infection don't bother to know the symptoms, the possible consequences, or the available cures.

Syphilis, more serious but less prevalent than gonorrhea, makes itself known usually 10 to 90 days after contact with an infected person.

A "chancere" resembling a pimple, a blister or an open sore, may develop at the point where infection occurred.

Jewelry leans to traditional

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

Jewelry for summer and fall is leaning more toward the traditional than new far-out innovations — without losing any of the drama needed to highlight today's classic trend in clothes.

One of the most important influences comes from the American Indian. Silver necklaces, belts, rings and bracelets bearing the design and smithing skills of such tribes as the Navajos are increasing in popularity.

Squash blossom necklaces with elaborate pendants and belts linking large oval medallions give an idea of the commanding size of the Indian pieces.

Among the most interesting of the American Indian contributions to modern fashion are the fetish necklaces made up of strands of tiny birds and animals. Most precious are those of turquoise. Others offer a mixture of colors in figures made of shells and multi-colored stones.

Strings of beads in one tone or multicolors are gaining preference over the chains that have held center stage over the past few years.

New freedom aids spread of disease among young

By JOAN MURARO
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — There is a new freedom in the land.

Freedom to go blind, to become insane, to be crippled, to have dead or deformed babies.

Freedom to develop heart diseases, to suffer a variety of arthritis, deafness, crippling paralysis, sterility.

Freedom to contract venereal disease.

Typically, people — especially young people — are eagerly exercising this new freedom by the tens of thousands, apparently indifferent to the fact that this weekend's casual encounter may be the next decade's total disaster.

By now, medical treatment will produce only minor benefits. The disease can be eradicated in the victim even after 20 or 30 years, but the damage it did in that time cannot be reversed.

The syphilitic insane patient can be cured of his syphilis; he will stay insane. The syphilitic blind patient can be cured for her syphilis; she will stay blind.

The tragic irony is that the diseases can be cured. Easily, painlessly, privately, and if need be, without cost.

To see that more people learn about both the hazards and the help, the communicable disease control division in the Illinois Department of Public Health is trying to reach the public, particularly the high school and college populations who are by far the largest age group becoming infected and spreading the disease.

Teachers are getting, on request, "VD demonstration kits," radio and television spots are being broadcast, and soon 400 billboards around the state will advertise the existence of the VD checkline, a toll-free telephone service available six days a week throughout the state.

Bob Griffin, who coordinates the state program, says he feels that despite continuing over-all rise in case numbers, that things may start looking better in a year or so, at least in part because of the education program.

New technical approaches offer new hope, too.

A more sensitive blood test for syphilis is being used, and used more often. The state lab last year checked 92,000 such tests, he said.

Even more important, since gonorrhea is by far the most prevalent of the two most common venereal diseases, is the increased use of test cultures to determine gonorrhea infection. In 1971, there were only 5,500 such tests administered to asymptomatic females (women without symptoms) in the entire state.

April of this year alone, 8,250 were made (revealing 281 previously undetected and unsuspected cases).

The department is also trying to dispel some classic myths about VD — like the belief you can get it from a drinking fountain, a public toilet, a doorknob. The organisms which cause VD can live for only a very brief time outside the warm, moist environment of the host body. The classic public health attitude is, "If you got VD in a public toilet, you weren't in there alone."

They try, too, to combat the happy but dangerously wrong belief that gonorrhea is "no worse than bad colds" and "will cure itself." A bad cold won't leave the victim with arthritis or heart trouble, sterile or with serious damage to the reproductive organs. Untreated gonorrhea can.

Despite the old public image of the disease-ridden prostitute, corrupting the clean, naive youth, today it is much more likely the girl next door who infects her partner. Prostitutes account for only a tiny part of all venereal disease infections, Griffin says, particularly cases of gonorrhea.

Complicating the department's job is the sneaky method of operation of the VD organisms. It is quite possible to have either disease and see no symptoms, particularly among women. In females, early signs of syphilis are likely to be internal, and unnoticed since there is little or no associated discomfort. In women, a lack of obvious symptoms of gonorrhea is the rule rather than the exception.

When symptoms of either are observed, they usually can easily be confused with other complaints and may be ignored.

Because most of the obvious signs will go away by themselves with no treatment, some victims are lulled into thinking they are "cured" when in fact the organisms are now out of sight and out of mind, but definitely not out of business.

Lana-use bills being pushed

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

A new wave of consumer-protection legislation is about to move across the interstate and state sales field. Legislative muscle will also exert new pressure for better land-use planning in communities throughout the country.

This is the expressed opinion of several key legislators, including Sen. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., for example, predicted that a bill on land-use planning would pass this year because 400 developers have been notified they are failing to meet full disclosure requirements.

The House of Representatives is "lacking of adequate communications and information." They are particularly negligent in describing details of their business organizations, operations of their property-owning associations, availability of sewer and water facilities and the existence of possible hazards.

When land sales practitioners are unrealistic and fail to cover all pertinent information, it is usually designed to justify an inflated price. More and stronger controls are needed, consumer-protection advocates are saying.

George R. Barnstead, federal land sales administrator, recently put it this way: "The public must, not be forced to pay outlandish prices to get rich-quick artists who sell land at prices projected for a decade hence, and with little regard for sound development practices."

Q. What is happening to the value of farm land?

A. In a few isolated areas, farm land values have decreased in recent years. But overall, the prices of farm land parcels have been increasing steadily, along with most everything else.

Average prices of farm land have reached record highs in most areas. One recent survey reveals current average values are ranging from $78 per acre in mountain states to $474 per acre in the northeast and $428 in the corn belt.

Q. We're finding it increasingly difficult to find available campsites. Why aren't more campgrounds being developed?

A. New campgrounds are being developed, but not fast enough to keep up with the demand. Last year, the number of campsites increased from about 820,000 to 887,000. More than 850 new campgrounds have been developed since 1971.

Brothers reunited after 61 years apart

A reunion of two brothers after 61 years apart ended Monday as Michael Vesce of Buenos Aires, Argentina, left Granite City after visiting his brother James Vesce of 2216 Waterman Ave.

The two separated in Naples, Italy, 61 years ago when James moved to the United States. Michael moved to Argentina when he became of age.

The two lost contact and James searched for his brother until learning of his address several years ago. They began communicating and finally were reunited.

Michael is touring the Ozarks and then will travel to Canada before joining a son, Hector, in Patterson, N. J. He will stay in New Jersey six months before returning to Argentina.

Court ruling prevents most direct way of making the levee district more responsive to needs of the taxpaying public

Quad-Cityans will strive to make the best of it, but this week's Illinois Supreme Court ruling is not encouraging. The court declared unconstitutional the December 1972 state law dividing the East Side Levee and Sanitary District.

The intent of the new law, purely and simply, was better government. But the court called it "special legislation" for which it could find no authority in the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

Since its creation shortly after the turn of the century, through good economic times and bad, through various state and district political regimes, the Levee District has been a thorn in taxpayers' sides. Adding to the problem was the consistent majority board control by the southern half, resulting in taxation without adequate local representation.

The ills of the district are literally too numerous to mention but they have included at many times in the past six or seven decades wasteful hiring, bidding and buying practices.

Instead of rendering a dollar's worth of service for each tax dollar, the district too often employed people who did not work, purchased equipment and supplies without sufficient effort to obtain low prices, and awarded construction contracts with unsound or absent bid procedures.

What was good for politicians in general and the East St. Louis City Hall machine in particular usually prevailed.

Although there were some exceptions, the local portion of the district usually was ignored while vast expenditures were made for projects in the portion below the Madison-St. Clair counties line. We could not get much in return.

It was the hope of backers of the law splitting the district at the county line that the district could thus be brought closer to the people. Two viable, effective districts responsive to the wishes of the two communities—the Quad-Cities and East St. Louis—were the goal.

Due to the State Supreme Court ruling, the two-district method cannot at this time be implemented. Its objective—efficient, responsive and responsible government—must not be lost sight of.

Pathet Lao negotiator there, has met with JCRC teams but has not permitted any U.S. personnel to enter Communist-held areas in search of grays.

He denies any Americans are still being held, but Laos is still the area of greatest mystery. While the evidence seems conclusive that no more Americans could have survived captivity in North and South Vietnam without having been reported or returned by this time, Laos is different.

There, 300 U.S. airmen shot down over the Ho Chi Minh trail are still missing. Another 750 were successfully rescued by parachute after crashing in the area, yet only nine prisoners were returned when the Vietnam fighting officially ended in January.

There have been vague reports that five to 20 U.S. prisoners had been sighted prior to 1969 in a prison compound at Nakay Neua, near Pathet Lao headquarters at Sam Neua, in northeastern Laos.

U.S. aircraft photographed the area many times but were never able to spot a prisoner compound. However, it has been pointed out the area is heavily pockmarked with limestone caves where prisoners easily could have been concealed from aerial observation.

U.S. officials acknowledge these prisoners were being held there once, but have no proof. The prisoners were probably being moved into North Vietnam, the officials say.

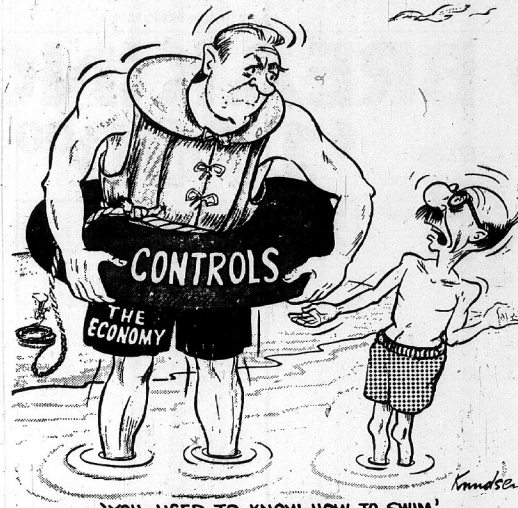

He seems to want America to regain its place as a world leader and a complete defender of the right.

He starts with the post-World War I period of retreat to isolation and sees in the era of Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover — the seed of today's drift into more isolationism.

He finds World War II as the high point in U.S. prestige, when we put our wealth and our lives on the line for the free world only to fritter away our global prestige with what he and many more call the "no win" Korean War policy.

"What is evident," he says, "is that the 'no win' policy Korea did not save us from further expenditure of blood and treasure in Asia (Vietnam)." On that basis, can we expect that a "no win" policy in Vietnam will have any different results?

He has very little use for Dwight Eisenhower as a president and blames him for the lack of U.S. response to the 1956 Hungarian revolution of 1956 — "tragic for the

Time running out for decision on free economy or controls
(Washington bureau)

Earlier this year good economists, in and out of the administration, asserted that there was no reason to impose more stringent federal economic controls because inflation was slowly being corrected under existing programs. The hesitation of President Nixon to act on what is now known as Phase 3 or the price "freeze" indicates his sympathy to this school of thought.

Nevertheless, the groundswell of public pressure prevailed. Responding to political demands, the administration imposed the 60-day price freeze on June 13. In doing so, the President emphasized that Phase 4, which will be announced in mid-August at the end of the present freeze, "will not be designed to get us permanently into a controlled economy... it will be designed as a better way to get us out... to return as quickly as possible to the free market system."

The national and international response in the week since the President's second economic freeze in two years has been disheartening. It seems to have pumped adrenaline instead of adrenalin into the veins of Wall Street. Abroad, the dollar value continued to gyrate and gold demand increased. At home, many indicators, ranging from the conduct of elected officials to public opinion polls, disclose that Americans in all walks of life and in all professions are quite content to have more government supervision of their economic lives rather than less. Considering the sorry record of previous wartime government controls of wages and prices and the historic individualism and independence of American people — it is indeed a frightening trend.

The President has an immense task of salesmanship ahead, unfortunately, if Phase 4 is to move toward his altogether laudable goal of avoiding "a permanent system of price and wage controls, and also rationing."

Perhaps the place to begin is to attack the popular misconception that a fixed rate of annual inflation always can be equated with growth and progress or that zero unemployment is possible or even desirable. Both concepts, we believe, are at the bottom of our current economic predicament.

Time is short. Within the next 32 days Americans must decide and let their federal administration know whether they really prefer economic controls more rigid than they ever have experienced in time of peace or whether they are determined to turn back toward the free market economy.

If we opt for more controls, there is every reason to believe, on the basis of Phases 1, 2, and 3, that they will be with us for a long, long time.

Watergate shows need for different attitude in campaigns (Washington bureau)

One of the many disturbing things coming from the Watergate hearings is the way top Nixon Administration officials such as Maurice Stans, campaign finance chairman and former commerce secretary, seem to consider it routine to keep large bundles of cash around for campaign purposes.

Stans appeared to consider it not at all unusual that persons in the White House would request $350,000 in cash to keep on hand for financing "special polling."

There was no indication what kind of "special polling" the White House crowd had in mind, but if it were a reasonable and responsible campaign operation, why would it have to be financed by cash? Why couldn't the White House people get authorization to pay for the polling by check?

Then there was the $50,000 Stans said the President's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, gave to him for his own use in the campaign. Stans said that wasn't considered campaign funds, but it was for personal use by the first vice chairman. What was the source of that money if it wasn't campaign contributions?

Apparently Stans used $5,000 of that — he didn't explain how — then returned $45,000 to Kalmbach when he asked Stans to come up with as much cash as possible to meet a White House request "not connected with the campaign" a few days after the Watergate bugging incident.

Stans said he also happened to have on hand at the time $30,000 in cash that had been given him by a Philippines citizen as a contribution to the Nixon campaign. He hadn't deposited this in any campaign accounts because he was having lawyers check out whether it was legal for the Committee to Re-Elect the President to accept money from foreign nationals. So, he said, this $30,000, which he gave Kalmbach along with the $45,000, was not campaign funds. He said the Filipino was later given back his $30,000, because legal counsel to the Finance Committee advised that contributions from foreign citizens should not be accepted; but he didn't say if he got $30,000 back from Kalmbach, paid it out of committee funds or took it out of his own pocket.

Why a Philippines businessman would be contributing $30,000 to the Nixon campaign and why it would be in cash are other intriguing questions left unanswered.

The shocking thing to us is that Stans seemed to regard it as not at all out of the ordinary for all this cash to be floating around in the campaign, which indicates such things were old hat to him. He said defensively that cash transactions amounted to only 2 per cent or so of the money taken in and of the money spent in the campaign. Nevertheless, $350,000 is a lot of cash to be lying around in one bundle, and altogether around $1 million was dispensed in cash.

Changes in the law regarding reporting of contributions and accounting for contributions, which took effect in the middle of last year's campaign, undoubtedly will have some good effect. If large gifts have to be reported, there is little reason for them to be made in cash.

However, there has been little attention given to eliminating abuses in the spending of campaign funds. We question that much will really be done until there is a change in attitudes by people like Stans. So long as it's accepted practice that thousands of dollars or hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash can be shuttled back and forth among campaign personnel for secret uses, there can be no cleanup of campaign abuses.

Winter wonderland

By BILL WINTER
Editor,
Press-Record

As Steinbeck said, 'How do we know it's us without our past?'

Quad-Cityans may not usually think of their own community as having many historic sites. Some of the other parts of this county and region are older and rank among the oldest in Illinois.

But with occurrences such as the Venice municipal centennial, a milestone reached today, it is apparent that the Quad-Cities are attaining a maturity which is of interest to history buffs.

Bearing this out is a voluminous report newly issued by the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission. Its title is "Open Spaces and Historic Sites Preservation Study—Madison, St. Clair, Monroe and Randolph Counties, Illinois."

What is a historic site? For the purposes of its preservation study, SIMAPC chose as a starting point the National Park Service definition and then expanded it to also reflect sensitivity for sites of local interest and importance.

The revised definition covered buildings, structures and sites having historic value in any of six categories:
1. Sites of important events.
2. Sites associated with important persons.
3. Buildings or structures of interior or exterior architectural importance.
4. Sites of historic-cultural value.
5. Unique natural sites.
6. Archeological sites.

Eight Quad-City historic places are cited, each covering the approximate period of the year 1900 to the present. All are privately owned, but the City of Madison City Hall at 1539 Third St.

The City Hall in Madison is designated as an area of significant architectural interest. Others so listed are:
W. J. Coody residence, 1737 Fourth St., Madison.
Former Malone's Bar, Madison Avenue and Third St., Madison.

Former First National Bank building, Niedringhaus and Edison avenues, Granite City. And the former Ross residence, now Venice-Madison American Legion Post 307, located at 740 Broadway, Venice.

Designated as having both architectural and historical value are:
Priest's building and Morris Building, both in the vicinity of 18th and Edison Ave.

And the former Hotel Metropole, 19th and State streets, Granite City.

The 140 Madison County historic sites also include:
Cliffa Bird painting site, Plattsburg between Alton and Chautauque, 1873-1789 period, historical.

Monk's Mound, U.S. 40, the 900-1000 year old, archeological.

St. Lewis and Clark Memorial Park, Route Three south of Hartford, 1780-1818, historical.

Among the purposes of the study by SIMAPC is to focus attention on historic preservation in the four-county region. The region is described as having "a very rich history, with many tangible reminders of that history remaining."

On the general topic of historic preservation, the Planning Commission's report relates that "throughout man's development, new inventions and ideas have been handed down from generation to generation."

"Until techniques for recording ideas and information in a permanent form were developed, the direct contact between generations was the only way that information could be passed."

Hope of finding MIAs persists

By JAMES CARY
Copy News Service

WASHINGTON — Americans missing in the Vietnam war may still be found alive in Cambodia, where as recently as last July there was a reported sighting of six persons believed to be captured news correspondents.

The report, although unconfirmed, has been taken seriously by State Department officials who are in charge of unraveling the grim, grim story of the Vietnam conflict — what happened to the more than 1,300 Americans still classified as missing in action.

Hope for the survival of even a few of the MIAs in Cambodia is not very strong. However, Frank Steverts, special assistant secretary of the House Foreign Affairs Committee May 31.

"We are aware of reports gathered by journalists and others," he said, "that there continue to be prisoners detained in Cambodia, possibly including some of our international journalists missing in that area."

"Although there has been no confirmation of these reports from the Communist side, they suggest the possibility that some Western personnel continue to be held in the country."

Some of them could be captured U.S. servicemen as well as journalists.

Steverts emphasized that current information indicates there is little chance of Americans being held elsewhere in Indochina.

The U.S. effort to determine the fate of the MIAs is centered in the Joint Casualty Resolution Center (JCRC) set up in Thailand near the border of Laos and South Vietnam. It is manned by U.S. military personnel.

The Communists have been told about its existence and purpose. Most of the JCRC contacts with the Communists have been through the four-party joint military team set up in Saigon under the terms of the Vietnam peace agreement.

So far, American teams have visited North Vietnam, twice to inspect burial sites of Americans who died in the north, and the Communists have acknowledged the existence of additional graves. They have not been specific about the numbers.

In Laos, another direct contact point has been established with the Lao Patriotic Front — commonly called Pathet Lao — in Vientiane. Phoumi Vorvichet, the chief Hungarians and, in the long run, damaging for the position of the United States in Eastern Europe."

Middleton thinks John F. Kennedy was far more aware of what Europe was all about than any president since.

He worries that America of the time of the 1976 Bicentennial will have sunk into "a comfortable senescence, paying lip service to the ideals whose pursuit once made us great, but avoiding any national exertion demanding our abiding support for those ideals."

While at first glance Middleton might seem to be taking a purely negative view of U.S. policies and global energies, that is not so. He has done an excellent analysis, as he sees it, of U.S. positions and actions concerned with those positions.

And, he does urge his country to "face the challenges of the coming years, or we are finished."

Drew Middleton, a veteran newsmen and observer of world events, fears that the United States is losing the reputation it long held abroad as the champion of the rule of law.

His "Retreat from Victory" gives chapter and verse with what he claims is proof of the view he takes. Some might say that he takes an odd view, considering he is a New York Times man, but his thoughts will have appeal for rightists, centrists and leftists in turn — and most of all he makes all Americans think more about the destiny of their country.

Stricter rules formed for school bus drivers

New, more stringent regulations for school bus drivers are being prepared for filing with the Illinois secretary of state, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Michael J. Bakalis. Improved regulations became essential when a recent check of 16,000 school bus drivers' records showed that more than 1,600 permit holders had bad driving records.

The new regulations stress constant cooperation between the state education office and the office of the secretary of state to maintain checks on school bus driver records. Previously, communication between the two offices was infrequent, and persons who had their driver licenses revoked by the secretary of state often retained their school bus driver permits issued by OSPI.

The new procedures require that all school bus drivers' records be examined for infractions each month by the secretary of state. Applicants must have at least three years driving experience and have held a valid driver's license for the three consecutive years immediately preceding their application. They must have no convictions for reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, or manslaughter or reckless homicide while operating a motor vehicle during those three years.

Applicants must not have been convicted of more than two moving violations or have been involved in more than one chargeable accident during two years immediately preceding the application.

A record of bad driving habits, disrespect for traffic laws, or disregard of others safety on the highway will prevent issuance of a permit. Weekly reports from the secretary of state's office on violations committed by school bus drivers will keep the education office informed of drivers' status. These reports will aid OSPI in determining suspensions, cancellations or revocations of permits.

When an individual no longer qualifies for a driver's license according to the Illinois Vehicle Code, his school bus driver permit will be canceled, suspended or revoked. The permit can be renewed when the individual's driving privileges are reinstated by the secretary of state, unless the license was revoked for driving while intoxicated, or if his past driving record reveals repeated involvement in collisions or repeated moving violations.

As in the past, OSPI will continue to revoke school bus drivers' permits immediately upon conviction of reckless driving.

Drivers whose records show repeated minor offenses will be allowed to keep their school bus drivers' permit if they enroll in a defensive driving course.

According to the new regulations, school bus drivers' permits must be renewed every year on the driver's birthday.

The regulations continue to require drivers to pass written and driving tests, hold a valid first-aid certificate, be in good physical condition, be of good character and refrain from smoking and using intoxicating beverages while transporting pupils.

State commission acts on behavior of lawyers

Copley News Service Springfield—The regulations by which the attorney registration commission of the Illinois Supreme Court will operate have been established. The regulations are designed to act on persons making complaints of alleged illegal or unprofessional actions in the operations of Illinois lawyers.

The establishment of the commission was announced some time ago by the Supreme Court. The commission will govern the action of some 20,000 lawyers in Illinois. Commission officials indicate that the system is set up to allow speedy follow ups when allegations are filed by the citizenry.

Commission, chairman is Justin A. Stanley. He was named to the post by the Illinois Supreme Court. The State Supreme Court is the final power whereby lawyers are admitted to the bar or if they are to be disbarred. The commission will be made up of five members.

Complaints against the attorneys can be made by an individual person or even by the commission, which will have offices in Chicago. If the initial investigation of an attorney indicates that perhaps there has been some mismanagement or the conduct of the attorney has not been the best, then the matter will be presented to an inquiry board.

It will then be left up to the inquiry board as to whether or not formal charges are to be leveled against the individual attorney.

If the inquiry board does determine that the complaint should be filed a hearing will then be held. The hearing board will try to hear the matter within 90 days. There can be a continuance granted, but good cause must be shown.

After the hearing board has presented all of its case, then the matter will be examined by a review board. The next step is then taken by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court will then announce either the disbarment or temporary suspension of an individual.

Previously complaints against an attorney were made either through the Illinois Bar Association or the Chicago Bar Association. The Supreme Court would announce the action taken. Also under the new system lawyers will be required to pay an annual registration fee.

Commission officials indicate that it has already received many complaints against attorneys.

Army to provide summer jobs at AVSCOM, GC base

The Army Aviation Systems Command (AVSCOM) is providing more than 200 jobs this summer through the Federal Summer Aid and the College Work-Study Program. In addition, AVSCOM is providing 100 job spaces in support of the City of St. Louis Emergency Employment Program.

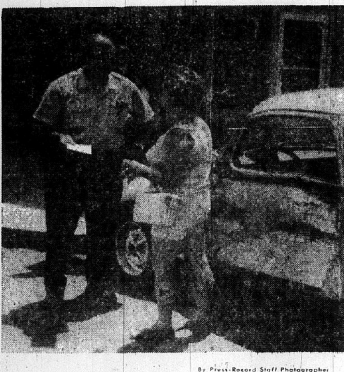

These 300-plus summer employees will work for AVSCOM, the various aircraft project and product management offices physically located within the AVSCOM headquarters, and the Granite City Army Installation.

Almost 100 summer employees are already working. The remainder will join the work force after the strike-related school year ends in St. Louis. According to Rex Pyle of AVSCOM's Human Resources Division, "Participants in the Summer Aid Program were chosen strictly on the basis of economic need, while Work-Study participants were selected on the basis of academic standing as well as economic need."

All summer employees are paid the federal minimum wage of $1.60 per hour and may work up to 40 hours per week.

"AVSCOM, and all of the other federal agencies in this area, are hiring more summer aids this year than ever before," Pyle noted. "Despite this," he says, "this year's summer employment total for the St. Louis area will fall 6,000 to 10,000 short of last year's due to the loss of the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program."

Bankers split on issue of multi-office banking

The Illinois Bankers Association has issued a statement in response to action taken at an organizational meeting of the Association for Modern Banking in Illinois.

The statement was made by James P. Ghiglietti, president of the IBA and president of the Citizens National Bank of Joliet.

"We regret and are highly concerned about the announcement that some of the members of the Illinois Bankers Association who favor multi-office banking will leave the association in an effort to foster their objectives."

"Such action can have only a negative effect upon banking in Illinois and its ability to provide the best possible banking services in our state," he said. "It is unknown at this time how many banks plan to withdraw from IBA. Approximately 100 of our members have not paid their membership dues which are due this month."

"Branch banking and multi-unit holding company banking are important issues in this state. The position that IBA now holds on these issues was reached in open sessions through the action of the delegates who represent all banking interests in Illinois. Certainly any further resolutions of their views can be accomplished better within the open forums of the IBA than from outside the association."

"Anyone who allows these issues to divide the banking community in Illinois is overlooking the many other serious and important concerns which have joined us together for the benefit of good banking."

"For example, during the past year, IBA studied and acted upon more than 200 legislative bills in behalf of good banking services in this state. Eight concerned multi-office banking."

"All of the others, there was unanimous agreement among our members over IBA's action. Surely, no banker wishes to limit such legislative study and activity, including we are certain, those who we hear plan to leave IBA and deprive it of their support."

"During this past year, also, we have held five established educational conferences and numerous workshops at which more than 3,000 bankers participated. These programs will be continued in the future, we are concerned that employees of banks which leave IBA will be deprived of participation."

"We regret also that some bank employees will be deprived of instruction at the Illinois Bankers School at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, and the Agricultural Leadership School at Illinois State University, Normal, because their banks no longer are members of IBA."

"Such deprivation injures not only the respective employees and banks, but also the entire banking community in Illinois. We urge any banks that have contemplated leaving their state association to give it serious reconsideration. Whatever our differences may be they are far fewer than our common aspirations for outstanding banking services to the people in Illinois."

"Let us work together to resolve our differences, just as we have worked together to reach solutions in other areas."

Public instruction office reorganization due July 1

The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction will undergo reorganization July 1, according to State School Superintendent Michael Bakalis.

Services will be consolidated and the major divisions of the office will be reduced from five to four. The reorganization, planned, phone numbers shall remain the same.

The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction will continue to maintain offices in Chicago and Mount Vernon in addition to the Springfield office.

The four associate superintendents who will head the reorganized divisions are: Jack Watson - Supervision and Instruction (includes the departments of Exceptional Children, Recognition & Supervision, Instruction, and Urban Bicultural Education);

Dr. James - Wilson - Educational Planning and Management (includes the departments of Planning, Fiscal Management, Data Services, and Budget & Management);

Dr. Michael Stramaglia - Pupil and Professional Services (includes the departments of Pupil Services, Professional Relations & Services, and Media Services);

Vito Bianco - Government Relations (includes the departments of State Governmental Relations, Federal Governmental Relations, and Research & Statistics).

Bakalis said the reorganization is part of our commitment to ongoing evaluation and improvement. He noted that, in the two and a half years of his administration, management functions have been streamlined, resulting in increased productivity and improved services, without increasing costs.

Earlier this year, he announced that, despite rising costs everything from pencils to personnel, he was submitting a budget request below that of the previous year's appropriation. The reorganization had been under consideration since early in the year. July 1 is the beginning of the new fiscal year for state agencies.

The reorganization should cause a minimum of inconvenience school districts or the general public, inasmuch as assistant superintendents and program directors remain essentially the same. Although a few office relocations are planned, phone numbers shall remain the same.

The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction will continue to maintain offices in Chicago and Mount Vernon in addition to the Springfield office.

Pre-Civil War Home near Glen Carbon sold

Historic "Oak Hill", a pre-Civil War home on Highway 157, in the bluff area near Glen Carbon, has been purchased by Colonel General Swecker and family of California.

Built in 1842 the two-story home is of white brick construction, late Federal style, containing 10 rooms, four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, three fireplaces, central air and basement.

Situated on five acres of high land, the house commands a panoramic view of Gateway Arch and bottomlands.

Although completely modernized by the present owners, the home still retains many original features, including hand-blown glass windows, two stairways, random-length plank floors, and original door knobs hardware. Wrought-iron light fixtures made by a blacksmith, gold-colored pictures in one hall, and a wine cellar also are featured.

The third fireplace is a large walk-in type in the family room. The extra large fancy pink brick "outdoor" is converted into a party playhouse. The stables and barn, still in use, were put together with wooden pegs.

The first owner of the estate was a Colonel Judy who received a federal land grant in 1843. Later the property was acquired by Judge John Peters who built the house in 1842, then established the little town of Peters Station. The town became a regular stage stop station between Vandalia and St. Louis.

The name "Oak Hill" was established because of a grove of oak trees planted around the house when built. Reported to be the largest oak trees in the State of Illinois, the largest has a circumference of 10 1/2 feet.

Sellers of the property were Mr. and Mrs. Ilos McConkey. Both buyers and sellers were represented by J. C. Cochran of the Cochran-Wall Real Estate Co.

Festivals to play role in tricentennial voyage

Festivals will play a large role in Illinois' celebration of the tricentennial voyage of Joliet and Marquette and the large festivals have been planned along the Mississippi River, according to Robert Sullivan, chief of the Illinois Division of Tourism.

Towns along the Mississippi and Illinois rivers are planning activities in conjunction with the arrival of the modern voyagers.

The canoeists, seven men and a boy, are retracing the 1,000 mile route followed by Joliet and Marquette in 1673.

Three communities along the Mississippi river are planning gala, multi-day festivals for the occasion.

Alton will present its pageant June 30 through July 7. Grand Tower will have festivals July 5 and Cairo has its activities July 6-8.

The Alton festivities start June 30 and July 1 at the Alton Museum of History and Art with various portrayals of the Piasa bird.

The Blessing of the Fleet will take place July 1 and the voyagers will be welcomed on July 2. There will be an Indian style feast in honor of the crew members.

A Riverfront festival will be held July 14-14. Twenty storefront booths will create a street of old Alton.

Lewis and Clark College will present 17th Century French music on July 1 and the Children's Theater will present puppet shows July 1-4.

Downtown Alton businessmen will present fireworks from a barge on the Mississippi River on July 3.

A performance of the legend on the Piasa bird will be featured in a sound and light living experience July 4-6. This will take place on the Great River Road at the same place where Joliet and Marquette first saw the painting of the Piasa.

Collinsville Indian dancers will present a pageant July 5. Festivities at the Roster Site will be July 6 as will Mexican dancing and square dancing.

The festival will conclude July 7 with a panorama procession of Alton history from the high school to Riverfront Park.

The Grand Tower celebration will start July 6 with a concert by the Chautau Art Force Band. Other events include a carnival, antique show, historical exhibits, an Indian Pow-Wow and a muzzle loading contest.

The canoeists will arrive at the Tower's Voyageur Club, will have rides in a 34-foot canoe during the three days and the morning of July 7 will journey upstream to meet the voyagers and accompany them into town.

The highlight of the three-day festival will be the nightly presentation of "Between the River and the Town." The play, especially written for the tricentennial, chronicles the history of Grand Tower.

The U.S. Postal Service has authorized a special stamp cancellation for the Grand Tower celebration and a special envelope will be made available to collectors.

Cairo's celebration will start July 6 with merchant's day, a trade fair and a community theater.

July 7 will feature a Jaycee parade and a western horse show; July 8 is the date of the homecoming, antique car show held July 14-14. Twenty storefront booths will create a street of old Alton.

The voyagers will arrive July 9 and special activities are planned at Fort Defiance State Park.

The Illinois Division of Tourism, Department of Business and Economic Development, is aiding local communities in forming activities planned in conjunction with the tricentennial voyage.

'Roots of Jazz' banquet to feature Miss Dunham

The Friends of Loyole Library at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will host a "Roots of Jazz" banquet and program Friday, featuring the celebrated dancer, choreographer and anthropologist Katherine Dunham. Since 1967, Miss Dunham has been director of the Performing Arts Training Center (PATC) at SIUE.

Miss Dunham will talk about "historic necessity for music," with comments on other artists, at the 6:30 p.m. dinner in the River Room of the University Center.

A program at 8:45 p.m. in the hall of Loyole Library will feature two drummers from Africa: Kwasi Bado of Ghana and Mor Thiam of Senegal. Bado, son of the paramount chief of Ghana, will be visiting the PATC, where Thiam is the master percussionist.

The Old Guys, a jazz group, will play African rhythms, ragtime, Dixieland and traditional jazz. Dan Havens, associate professor of English at SIUE, and trumpeter with The Old Guys, will speak briefly on the history of jazz.

Those attending the program in the library will also have an opportunity to dance, according to Mrs. Stephen Stimson, executive secretary of the Friends of the Library.

"The banquet and program are intended to focus attention upon the library's Music of the American People collection and upon its creator, Mabel Murphy, fine arts librarian, who will retire this year," Mrs. Stimson said. "Almost entirely through gifts, the library has acquired a 150,000-item research collection, which includes rare books, old musical instruments — some from Africa — and all types of musical scores."

"Miss Dunham's lifetime in dance theater and related studies in anthropology eminently qualifies her to speak on the subject of music of the American people," Mrs. Stimson said.

Born in Chicago and graduate from high school in Joliet, Miss Dunham studied anthropology at the University of Chicago and Northwestern University. She did anthropological research in the West Indies under a Rosenwald travel fellowship.

Acclaimed by music critics in the United States and abroad for her work with children at the PATC in East St. Louis, Miss Dunham gave her first major dance performance in 1934 at the Chicago World's Fair.

KATHERINE DUNHAM

Fair. She performed with the Chicago Opera Co. from 1933 to 1938. In 1938 she made her debut in New York City. Later she formed her own dance company, bringing together dancers from throughout the world. Some of the members of her original troupe are on the staff of PATC.

Though no longer dancing professionally, her talents continue to be in demand. In the 1960's she took on such assignments as choreographing sections of the film, The Bible, produced in Rome by John Huston, and designing dance numbers for the Metropolitan Opera production of Aida.

In 1971, she was asked to serve as technical adviser for intercultural communications by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D. C. Earlier this month she was elected a director of the National Council on Aging.

At the June meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees she was named university professor in ethnic and special studies.

Author of several books, Miss Dunham is an expert on Haitian dances and holds the Legion of Honor and Merit award from that country's government for her cultural work. She and her husband, John Pratt, a theatrical designer, live in East St. Louis but retain a residence in Haiti.

Reservations for the "Roots of Jazz" dinner, at $4.25 per person, should be made with the office of the Friends of Loyole Library not later than Tuesday. Checks should be made payable to the Friends of Loyole Library.

Those who wish to attend only the program in the well of the library at 8:45 p.m. may do so without charge, Mrs. Stimson said.

Drive planned to reduce size of Illinois House

By RAY SERATI
Copley News Service

Springfield — A group which says one of its major goals is to reduce the size of the Illinois House of Representatives is slated to begin its drive in January.

Officials of the Committee for Legislative Reform say they will begin a drive in January to get people to sign a petition seeking to cut the size of the 177-member Illinois House. The group says it wants to cut some 50 members from the House.

The group must obtain 375,000 signatures on its petition to place the matter on the November, 1974 general election ballot. It actually is the first time that citizens are taking action under the citizens' initiative section or amendment of the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

Up until the time when the new constitution was adopted in 1970, Illinois had only one way to get such matters before the voters and that was through the General Assembly.

But now this is all changed and constitutional authorities say if the group is successful in getting the matter on the ballot, it will open up future drives by citizens.

Presently, Illinois elects three members for the House from 39 districts. This also includes the present Illinois system of cumulative voting for House members.

A PLACE TO LIVE IN PEACE WITH NATURE AS YOUR NEIGHBOR AT COTTONWOOD STATION

It began with a concept. A totally planned community where families could live with pride, where Cottonwood Station would be a way of life. Nature provided an unblemished canvas and we cooperated with underground utilities. Nothing mars the view. Exceptional building sites are still available. The choice is complete: An exclusive estate, a family home, or a rustic modular cottage. It's country air and country living. Thirty acres of wooded park to roam and a lake to fish. Come by and see us. Cottonwood Station is at Edwardsville on Illinois 159, about 20 minutes from St. Louis. Open from noon until dark daily including Sunday. Coffee is always on the table. A bowl of apples, too. It's peaceful and nature is your neighbor.

vice-president of the Student Council and served as prom chairman. He is a member of the Rock Young Men's Club, currently serving as its citizen of the month chairman.

GC Council begins draft of new budget

Granite City took its first steps toward preparation of its 1973-74 budget bill Monday night as tentative budget figures—still lacking salary projections in the major city departments—were distributed to City Council members by Mayor Paul Schuler and the council's finance committee.

While the new figures indicated a substantial increase over the 1972-73 budget because of a number of new items made possible by federal revenue sharing funds, Alderman Gerald Parmley, chairman of the finance committee, emphasized that the estimates are "highly flexible" and were presented to give the council members some conception of "the direction in which we are headed."

At the same time, Alderman Sam Whitmer, chairman of the negotiating committee, told the council that his committee hopes to report in the July 2 meeting on results of discussions on salary raises with representatives of city departments.

"I can say now that we are having trouble in one area, but the offers we have made appear acceptable in all other departments," Whitmer said.

"We have a further meeting scheduled and expect to know one way or another by the next meeting. Whether or not objections to our schedule by one department will hold up agreements in the other departments remains to be seen," he added.

Whitmer said the negotiating committee has made "firm offers" to departmental units "and we don't intend to back down." He did not name the department in which new salary proposals still are unacceptable.

Budget listings submitted Monday night projected 1973-74 expenditures for supplies, materials and equipment, but since salary figures were missing did not provide overall total expenditures for all departments.

In many instances, however, projected expenditures for the new budget, which were compared with actual expenditures for the same purpose during the 1972-73 fiscal, showed sizable increases. Largest of these was in the fund for maintenance of sewers for which the new budget figures project expenses of $800,000 for repairs to a series of sewer breaks that have developed since early this year. Actual expenditures for sewer repairs last year amounted to $17,201.

Parmley told the council that the $800,000 figure "is only an estimate." He said the repair cost could go higher than that, "and we hope it will be lower." The city has contracted with a construction firm to repair 11 breaks reported thus far.

The total suggested budget for maintenance of sewers is set at $850,000, including the $800,000 repair item. Other items include $25,000 for clerical salaries, compared to actual expenditures of $3,914 last year; $5,000 for contingencies compared to actual costs of $94 last year; and $15,000 for engineering and inspection of the sewer break repairs, for which there was no such expenditure last year.

Among other new items which are expected to send the new budget total upward is $100,000 for construction of a new Nameoki fire station, plus $20,000 for land acquisition for the station. Costs of two new fire pumps are also included.

An item of $40,246 is projected for payment of a new pump delivered recently, while an additional $48,500 is budgeted to order another new pump this year.

The proposed budget for the First Department also includes $40,000 for the addition of four firemen to the present force, and $6,000 for painting the exterior of the main fire station at 23rd Street and Madison Avenue.

New budget items for the Street Department, for which there were no expenditures last year, include a tailgate spreader, $2,500; two chipping machines, $13,000; three new trucks, $15,000; a new sweeper, $20,000; a highlight, $15,000; a concrete breaker, $2,500; and an air compressor, $3,000—a total of $71,000.

An item of $20,000 to rewire the city hall also is set up. For the humane department, the proposed new budget also includes $400 for a radio base station, $700 for a truck radio and $3,000 for a new truck.

The proposed budget projects overall expenditures of $254,521 in the Public Library fund. Actual expenditures in the library fund last year amounted to $191,620.

Further discussion of the budget will be held in future meetings of the council to deplete or add items on the basis of those suggested Monday night, Parmley said. No council action was taken on any of the proposed figures Monday.

Two make dean's list

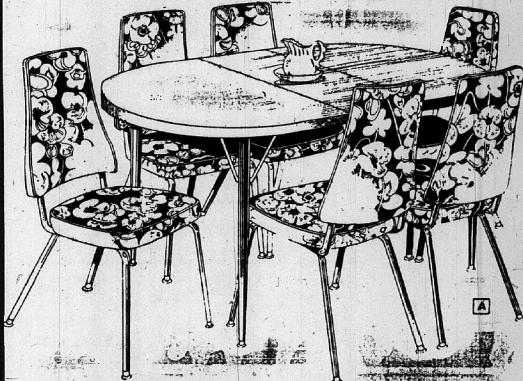

Kevin Thornberry, son of Mrs. Dorothy W. Thornberry, 2328 Clark Ave., and James Carl Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brooks, 903 McCambridge Ave., Madison, have made the dean's list for the second semester at MacMurray College.

Abe Lincoln's shade still stalks Springfield

By L. S. CLEMENS
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — The ghost of Abraham Lincoln stalks the city of Springfield, in a beneficial shadow.

His name is everywhere, on hotels, on restaurants, even on taxi cabs.

Yet in the area of his home at Eighth and Jackson, there is less obvious commercialism than there once was, and it will all disappear when plans for the block, now a national shrine, are completed.

For those who haven't been to the home, or who have not seen it in recent years, Jackson and Eighth have been closed off and a block-long mall provided.

Two souvenir shops still occupy space nearby and the reproduction of the Ninian Edwards home at Eighth and Capitol, where the Lincolns were married, still reach for the tourist's extra coin as does a museum.

But these, it is understood, are scheduled eventually for the wrecker's ball and one, once occupied by a wax museum, is now vacant with only a sign to call attention to its new quarters on Ninth Street.

Lincoln's shade, though, is not the only one that stalks the streets of Illinois' capital city.

Here, too, for those who care to look for it, is the ghost of government past, the likes of which this nation will never see again.

It's necessary to visit two sites to appreciate this ghost. One is the old State Capitol building at Sixth and Adams, the building from which Lincoln was buried in 1865.

The other is the "new" State Capitol at Second and, appropriately, Capitol Avenue, completed and occupied in 1876.

The old building, which served the state of Illinois for almost 30 years — from 1837 until 1868, is not much larger than a city hall.

It is a testimonial to the immensity of government in those early years of our state.

The governor's office is not much larger than the biggest bedroom in most homes. His reception room, used by Lincoln to greet callers after his election to the presidency, is no bigger than the living room in a medium-sized home.

The office and reception room simply were not designed to impress or awe a visitor.

Matter of fact, with extra candles nearby, a woodbox near the stove where the occupant of the room could see to his own needs, the space is plainly intended to say, "Howdy, neighbor."

The same is true of the House and Senate Chambers. From the visitors' gallery or balcony some of the legislators' desks, a visitor would be almost eyeball to eyeball with the speaker and clerks on their raised platforms.

It was in this room that Lincoln delivered his "House Divided" speech, one of several of his orations that was credited with opening the path to the presidency.

It was also here that he lay in state before his burial in Oak Ridge Cemetery, then a fairly new burial ground.

The Senate Chamber is even smaller, but it cuddles up to the offices of the governor, adjutant general and superintendent of schools.

The growth of Illinois in power and in influence in the less than 60 years that had passed before the present Capitol was in use is plainly illustrated by the differing sizes of the two buildings.

So, too, can the growth be seen that has occurred in the 98 years since by a walk around the 1876 capitol grounds.

To the north is the Armory and much cleared ground which is proposed to someday provide an office building for our legislators.

To the west is the multi-story State Office Building, taking up the spillage of governmental office that have outgrown the magnificent capitol.

To the south are the Archives buildings, (one of which once housed the state museum) where the records of the state dating back to 1818 are stored.

To the east of them is the Supreme Court building and the office building of the attorney general, both of which once had a home in the capitol.

This is Illinois today, at a governmental level. At the people level, I like to think of the guard we met at the new Illinois State Museum during a recent visit there with my wife, a brother and his wife.

With much to do we were debating out loud on whether to tour the second floor.

"Of course you must," he interrupted our debate.

"There's the elevator, ready to go."

Under his stern eye we scurried aboard and took the tour.

He hadn't forgotten us when we returned.

"Enjoy it?" he asked.

"Yes," we chorused.

We wouldn't have dared to tell him otherwise.

That obviously made happier his already happy day showing off his state.

LOOKOUT POINT---There weren't any bridges over Rock River (at Left) when the Sauk and Fox Indians made the area which today comprises Black Hawk State Park, Rock Island County, their headquarters. At right is a wicki-up which may be seen in the museum at the park.

Black Hawk Park was Indian capital

ROCK ISLAND — Black Hawk, the pro-British leader of the Sauk and Fox Indians in the Revolutionary War, probably wouldn't be pleased to know Black Hawk State Park in Rock Island County was named in his honor.

Whatever it's name, the park occupies a site which once was the scene of one of the largest Indian centers in North America, with the capital villages of the Sauk and the Fox nations located in this area for nearly a century.

Some of the Sauk and Fox served the emerging Americans during the Revolution, but another faction headed by Black Hawk, aided the British.

The great Indian village, which rose after the Sauk and Fox drove out the Kaskaskia Indians before there, was finally destroyed in 1780 by a troop of 350 Americans aided by 100 Spanish soldiers from St. Louis. At the time the American Revolution began, the Sauk and Fox Indians had already subdued other tribes in parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri and all of Iowa.

Though other chiefs of the two great Indian tribes ceded their village site to the young United States in 1802, Black Hawk refused to recognize the action. For a time he managed to hold back the oncoming tide of white settlers, winning several decisive battles with white forces, but eventually the continuing terror of Indian raiding spurred a widespread mobilization of regulars and militia with the common cause of halting the raiding.

Among those seeing action during the Black Hawk War were Abraham Lincoln, a captain of the Illinois militia; Jefferson Davis, a lieutenant in the regular army; Zachary Taylor, in command of the First U.S. Infantry serving in the Rock River Valley, as well as Gen. Winfield Scott and Robert T. Anderson who gained fame a few years later at Ft. Sumter.

Black Hawk himself was captured in 1832, held for a while during which he was taken to Washington, D.C., and eventually was allowed to return to his people in Iowa, where he died in 1838.

Black Hawk State Park, a 207-acre tract of wooded and steeply rolling land bordering the Rock River, is the scene of an annual Indian Pow-Wow held each Labor Day weekend. An amphitheater seating 5,500 persons has been built for the Pow-Wow, when Fox Indians from Tama, Iowa, and Sauk Indians from Oklahoma including Black Hawk's direct blood descendants, perform in traditional dress against a background of native trees.

Facilities of the park are limited to picnicking, and hiking, with playground equipment, a concession stand and a baseball field available. The Watch Tower Inn, built of stone and heavy timbers and decorated with an Indian theme, is open year-round and provides dining rooms, a large lounge and a recreation room, with facilities for serving large parties and groups.

The Hauberg Museum, named for a former president of the Quad-Cities Council which sponsored the Pow-Wow, is also located in the park, near the Inn and Black Hawk's Statue. A collection of Indian relics and artifacts gathered by Dr. Hauberg, is on display there.

The park is located south of Rock Island, off U.S. 67, on Ill. 2.

As in all Illinois parks, no groups of 25 or more are admitted unless reservations have been made with the park ranger, and groups including minors must have at least one responsible adult on hand for each 15 youngsters.

Brochures are available at the park which include maps of the property showing where such facilities as Frenchman's Cliff, Singing Bird Lodge and the Lover's Cliff are located.

Steno makes good

By JOAN MURARO
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — A woman who worked her way up from a stenographic position in the state securities division has been named deputy securities commissioner for the state of Illinois.

Mrs. Joan M. Tefertiller was named to the post by Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, becoming one of two women holding comparable positions in the nation. The other is the woman who is secretary of state for Wyoming, and as such also administers that state's securities law.

A native of California, Mrs. Tefertiller attended Eureka College at Eureka, Ill., and planned a career in a foreign legation, specializing in languages and other courses aimed at a diplomatic career. She subsequently changed her mind about living outside the United States and on graduation took a secretarial job with an industrial firm. When she married Robert Tefertiller, whom she had met at college, and moved to Springfield where he was employed in the secretary of state's office, she decided the securities division sounded "interesting" and took a stenographic post there.

That was 24 years ago. She subsequently worked her way up, reading and studying more about securities, and deciding it was more interesting the more she learned.

Since 1966 she has been chief examiner in the division. As deputy, she works with the commissioner in enforcing the state's securities law, which among other things requires registration of all securities offered in the state, except for those which are specifically exempted, such as government securities, those issued by trust companies, banks or railroads, all of which are under regulation by some other agency. Transactions of nonprofit organizations are also exempt.

Last year, the division registered $11,460,707,287 in securities being offered in the state. The division also registered 657 dealers and 10,508 salesmen in the 1972 calendar year.

A separate enforcement section of the division acts in cases of violations of the securities act.

Agreeing that presently women are a distinct minority in any administrative capacity in the securities field, Mrs. Tefertiller says she finds the division registering increasing numbers of women as salesmen and dealers, and finds women beginning to appear more in executive capacities in corporations which offer their securities on the market. Within a few years, she says, she expects to see far more women in post-licensing roles.

For the last seven years Mrs. Tefertiller has been a member of the options and warrants committee of the National Association of Securities Administrators and is currently serving as committee chairman. She has also been active on panels and seminars of the Midwest Securities Commissioners Association pertaining to real estate investment trusts and special studies on securities markets and mutual funds.

Pickles, frankfurters combine for picnics

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

Picnic and outdoor dining time is at hand.

For some weekend, you might like to team two picnic favorites, pickles and frankfurters.

Toppings are a popular way of dressing up the frankfurters. Any of these toppings given here will help star the hot dog for picnics, after-game, or swim-fest parties.

DILLED SLAW TOPPING
(Makes about 1 quart)

1 quart finely shredded cabbage
1 medium tomato, chopped

1/2 cup chopped dill pickle
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon celery seed
Dash pepper

Combine and mix all ingredients. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

PICKLE BEAN TOPPING
(Makes about 2 cups)

1 can (15 ounces) pork and beans
One-third cup chopped sweet mixed pickles
2 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon prepared horseradish

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Heat to serving temperature; stirring occasionally. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

RELISH CHEESE TOPPING
(Makes 1 1/2 cups)

1 package (1/2 pound) pasteurized process cheese spread, at room temperature
One-third cup undrained sweet pickle relish
1/2 cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
Beat cheese smooth. Blend in remaining ingredients. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

SHOPPING Sheet labels confusing

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Labels can be very confusing nowadays. For example, try comparing the price and quality of sheets. The labels have either muslin or percale. You ask yourself, "What's the difference?"

The difference is in the type of yarns used. Muslin is heavy in weight, has coarse yarns, and feels rougher than percale. Percale is smooth, soft, easily wrinkled, and a luxury to most families.

The labels also have a thread count marked on it. "So what?" Well, the thread count is an indication of how many threads there are per inch of fabric. The properties are influenced by the thread count.

As an example, a thread count of 200 will have a maximum of 1 per cent sizing added. A thread count of 128 will have a maximum of 5 per cent sizing added.

Sizing is added to a fabric to give it body. It's usually removed with the first washings.

The words "Durable Press" (or similar words) are also found on some labels of sheets. Should you pay the extra cost for the easy-care finish? The answer is yours.

If you send your sheets out to a professional laundry, then the Durable Press will save you money. If you like ironed sheets but you don't want to spend the time ironing them, then the extra few cents will be an advantage to you. If you don't care, or if your dryer removes enough wrinkles that you are satisfied, then paying extra isn't necessary. You can be satisfied with the non-Durable Press sheets.

The fiber content is also important. All cotton will shrink more than a cotton blend. All nylon will be hot in summer and cold in winter. The best fiber content for good looks, easy care, and long life is a 50-50 blend of cotton and polyester.

The sizes of sheets can be a problem if they aren't marked: twin, full, queen, or king. I hope this can help you.

Adoption Listing Service speeds process

Illinois children who are waiting to be adopted and who were once considered "hard-to-place" are being more readily chosen for placement because of a speeded-up adoption process called the Adoption Listing Service.

Patterned after the Multiple Listing Service successfully used by the real estate field, the Adoption Listing Service assembles personal data and pictures of waiting children and prospective parents, then distributes coded information weekly to 90 adoption offices in Illinois. Requests for the 5-1/2" x 8-1/2" loose-leaf catalog have come from 18 states and Canada.

Because the data sheets are current and meticulously organized for quick review by agency workers and prospective parents, adoption placement results have been dramatic.

Since the establishment of the Adoption Listing Service on Sept. 7, 1971, as a supportive arm of the Springfield-based Child Care Association of Illinois, 428 children have been placed in adoptive homes by adoption agencies as a direct result of the listing service.

Many of the children, ranging in age from 2 to 14, were considered unadoptable because of age, color or severe physical or mental handicaps often caused by early deprivation.

More than 2,744 telephone inquiries have been channeled from the Adoption Listing Service office at 2101 West Lawrence Avenue, Springfield, to adoption office throughout Illinois.

Because the concept of ALS is to speed up the adoption process, the telephone is used almost exclusively. ALS officials claim a three-minute telephone call is more economical than suit, supply and postage required for letter writing, and is "much, much faster."

A report of the first 15 months' operation of the Adoption Listing Service reflects an accelerated pace of placement of waiting children.

104 out of 152 black children were placed by licensed adoption agencies within three months after listing with ALS. 42 out of 60 black-white children were placed within three months after listing.

87 out of 179 white children were placed in the same time period, and 22 out of 32 mixed race children were placed in the first three months after listing. The CCA is a private, not-for-profit membership corporation for educational purposes. Members include individuals and public, private, sectarian and non-sectarian agencies. The CCA works cooperatively for child and family services.

The rest of the children adopted were placed within 15 months.

On May 4, 1973, Jerome G. Miller, newly appointed director of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, directed department personnel to use the Adoption Listing Service as an "effective means of finding families for all children free for adoption for whom no adoptive home is available."

Gary D. Barnett, Casework Supervisor for Bethany Home, Moline, says "The Adoption Listing Service has helped find homes for children who might have stayed in limbo for years."

Barnett thinks the concept of using good pictures, and letting prospective parents leaf through the book, makes the possibility of adoption more realistic and expeditious placements. He hopes ALS can be expanded to other states so that the search for families will not stop at state lines.

Heleen Seely, regional director of the northwest region of Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society, Rockford, believes ALS "has the potential of being a very effective way to find permanent homes for children, but its success will depend mainly on how well adoption offices supply ALS with the most current status of adoptable children."

Don P. Robeson, administrator of the Quinlan district office of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, believes the significance of ALS is the reversal of thinking that some children are "hard to place."

"What this represented was not a true picture of these children's needs but an attitude on the part of workers toward these children. ALS has given leadership to agencies and workers to provide services to the children with a much more positive and satisfying approach," Robeson said.

One of the most important by-products of the accelerated adoption procedure is the savings in charitable and tax dollars. ALS estimates the average cost of care for one child destined for foster or institutional care to be $3,600 per year, or a total of $64,000 from birth to age 18.

The yearly budget of the Adoption Listing Service is about $50,000 which includes the salary of a coordinator and one secretary, postage, travel, telephone and miscellaneous office expenses. The Adoption Listing Service directory is printed free by the Multiple Listing Service of the Springfield Board of Realtors. The work is done at night by volunteer staff members.

The Child Care Association of Illinois is sponsoring the Adoption Coordination Project as a three-year demonstration project. To support the project, it must solicit funds annually from individuals, companies, foundations, individual churches, denominations and United Funds.

Charles W. Filson, a Presbyterian minister, is the originator of the multiple listing idea, and is coordinator of the ALS project.

According to Filson, "The primary mission of ALS is to find more moving homes and families for children who need them. Our project is one way of letting people know who and where the kids are, and who is responsible for them."

Information about the Adoption Listing Service can be obtained by calling 217-787-1715.

MRS. DANIEL ALAN CONWAY, the former Miss Renda Cheryl Mize, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mize of Oxford, Miss. She was married at the Yellow Leaf Baptist Church in Oxford.

Conway-Mize nuptials in Oxford, Mississippi

Miss Renda Cheryl Mize, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mize of Oxford, Miss., and Daniel Alan Conway, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Conway, 2551 State St., exchanged wedding vows in an afternoon ceremony on June 9 at the Yellow Leaf Baptist Church in Oxford.

The Rev. Lloyd E. Metts performed the double ring ceremony at 2 o'clock before an altar adorned with arrangements of deep blue hydrangea and greenery. Mrs. James May presided at the piano, furnishing a program of wedding selections.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle and given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a white peau de soie gown.

Short sleeves, appliqued with daisies, were set in the Empire bodice featuring a petite Peter Pan collar, and the skirt was given slight fullness with unpressed pleats.

Her full-length veil of French tulle was secured with a head band of gardenias and the bridal bouquet was a cascade of gardenias centered with deep pink rosebuds.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Harold K. Metts, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Taylor DuChaine, Mrs. Harris Rogers III and Mrs. Thomas McCoy, the latter a cousin of the bride, were gowned alike in light blue dotted Swiss dresses.

Their frocks were flocked in white and fashioned with short sleeves and round scooped necklines, accented with white daisies. White satin ribbon bows defined the high rise waistlines above A-line style skirts.

Each attendant wore a circlet of daisies and cornflowers in her hair and held a bouquet of white daisies and blue cornflowers encircling yellow rosebuds.

The groom's father, Julius C. Conway, served as best man. David Nolan, Robert F. Bole, Carl A. Mize, the bride's brother, Stephen M. James L. and John L. Conway, all brothers of the groom, completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the service, with Miss Beverly Mize, the bride's cousin, attending the guest book.

Members of the wedding party attended a rehearsal dinner on the evening preceding the wedding at Sizzler Steak House in Oxford.

The former Miss Mize graduated in 1969 from Oxford High School and from the University of Mississippi this year with a B.S. degree in physical education.

While in college, she served as president of the Physical Education Major Club and Women's Recreation Association and belonged to the university's basketball, tennis and volleyball teams.

Mr. Conway was graduated in 1970 from Granite City High School and is now a senior Marine Officer Candidate student at the University of Mississippi, where he is majoring in biology.

The bridegroom has been named co-manual of A Company for the 1973-74 school year. He will take advanced training at the Marine Corps base at Quantico, Va., during the summer months.

An out-of-town wedding of interest here was that of Miss Sharon Lea Popelka, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Popelka, Winnebago, Neb., and Terrence Henry Rohlfing, a son of Mrs. Henry Rohlfing of Granite City, who were married June 16 in Beemer.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock in the evening by the Rev. Dennis Frey at Immanuel Lutheran Church, before an altar adorned with arrangements of summer flowers.

Presiding the service, the church organist played "The Lord Bless You and Keep You" and "O Perfect Love."

For her wedding, the former Miss Popelka chose a floor-length gown of sheer organza with long sleeves and a detachable chapel-length train. She wore a flower cap of gladiolus petals tied to hold and complement her long-length veil and she held a semi-crescent bouquet of gladiolus accented with white ribbon.

The maid of honor, Miss Donna Thorberg, and bridesmaids, Miss Bonnie Hegar and Mrs. Louis Rohlfing, a sister-in-law of the groom, wore identical gowns of powder blue dotted swiss. They were designed in a princess style with short puffed sleeves, a stand-up collar, accented with white trim, and full-length skirts. In their hair, they wore small tufts of blue tulle with white miniature carnations and gypsophylla.

Each carried a white basket, lined in silver and edged with delicate silver lace, containing garden flowers and greenery.

Ralph Mickley served the groom as best man, David Popelka and Louis Rohlfing, brothers of the bride and groom, were groomsmen. Neal Kurtz, Allan Hendrickson and Kenneth Rabe acted as the GC acts to qualify for flood insurance

Action to qualify Granite City for flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Act was taken by the Granite City Council Monday night.

The action was approved unanimously a resolution in which the city assumed the Federal Insurance Administration of legislative action to comply with land use and criteria regulations of the insurance act and agreed to adopt land use and control measures.

The resolution provided for the appointment of Robert Kelly, building inspector, to work with the federal administrator in delineating limits of flood areas, providing information concerning present use and occupancy of the flood area and working with federal, state and local agencies in identifying flood areas.

A supplemental resolution in which the city required the building inspector to review all building permit applications to determine if the construction is reasonably safe from flooding, and to make recommendations for construction in all locations which have flood hazards, also was approved unanimously.

Adoption of both resolutions was required for the city to comply with federal standards, Mayor Paul Schuler said.

The council also enacted an ordinance placing the city painter under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of streets instead of the traffic department, and approved another ordinance creating the position of secretary to the Police Department at a salary of $400 per month.

Mayor Schuler announced the appointment of Linda Calvo to the police secretary's post. Another ordinance given final passage on a suspension of rules provides for discontinuance of a yield regulation at Willow and Emert streets. The yield will be replaced later by a traffic stop.

An ordinance creating a traffic stop on Marshall Avenue at Pershing Boulevard also was enacted.

In other business, the council voted to pay $32,235 to Louis Mark, former Granite City police officer, to terminate a long-standing circuit court case, but rejected a claim for $1,796 in sick leave for the former officer.

Referred to the street and alley committee a request that a recommendation be brought dealing with the budgeting of federal revenue sharing funds for blacktopping streets, and for drainage improvements.

Instructed the city attorney to bring in an ordinance controlling garage and rummage sales in residential areas.

Approved a recommendation by Alderman Earl Baker, chairman of the air pollution committee, that Larry Canada of Granite City be appointed as a technician of the Air Pollution Control Board at a salary of $700 per month, and that an ordinance be brought in creating the post of air pollution inspector, a part-time job at $300 per month.

Confirmed appointment by Mayor Schuler of Donnie Michael and Alderman Sam Whitmer as members of the Air Pollution Control Board, and Jack Scarborough as a student intern for eight weeks.

Nameoki ok's uses for revenue sharing funds

Plans for expenditure of about $30,000 in federal revenue sharing funds were approved after a Nameoki Township public hearing on the proposals Monday night in the town hall.

The funds were earmarked for an environmental cleanup program, expansion of the town hall, payment for a State Park bridge, a park and a larger holding pond for dogs and cats.

The town auditors authorized Albert Bell, highway commissioner, to begin interviewing applicants for about four openings which will be involved in the environmental program.

The employees will be involved in chipping and liming pickups, brushing of limbs, vacuuming ditches and street sweeping.

A letter was read from the village board of Ponton Beach, authorizing the environmental cleanup program to include the village. There will be no cost to the village for the services provided, Louis Whitsell, Nameoki Township supervisor, explained.

The township auditors presented preliminary sketches for an estimated $30,000 expansion of the township hall to a representative of Cohen-Nagel Associates, architects, St. Louis, the firm chosen to design the addition. The sketches will be used by the firm in preparing plans for the work.

Whitsell said extensions of the township books for tax collection purposes have not been completed and taxes are not expected to be received by the township until July or August.

It probably will be July before taxpayers in Nameoki even get a bill, Whitsell said. He added that only $4,700 remains in the town fund and that monthly salaries total about $4,000 and $5,000.

He suggested the township sell a $10,000 in tax anticipation warrants to pay obligations of the town fund until taxes have been received. The auditors approved the borrowing. "This is the first time we have ever had to do this," he explained.

They also voted to sell a $20,000 anticipation warrant for general assistance purposes. Borrowing for general assistance is required before reimbursement can be sought from the state government.

Both warrants will be sold to the First Granite City National Bank.

Douglas Teeter, town clerk, explained that a special town elections meeting will be required to transfer the revenue sharing funds from the town fund into the road and bridge fund. He said he will call the date for the hearing in early July.

2 taken from mother in custody hearing

The two small children of Mrs. Connie Warrick, 2012 Sixth St., East Madison, were placed in temporary custody of the state at a hearing Monday in the Juvenile Detention Home at Edwardsville.

A hearing on permanent custody is to be held within 10 days, according to Mrs. Mary Lynn, a child welfare worker at the Edwardsville office of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, who said the two children have been in foster homes pending court action.

Howard L. Etherton, vice-president, First Granite City National Bank, was graduated June 22 from The Stonier Graduate School of Banking. The school, founded in 1935, is a three-year program emphasizing basic policy and management problems. It is conducted by The American Bankers Association at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J.

Etherton was one of 334 bankers from all parts of the country making up the class of 1973.

In order to qualify for the graduation certificate, Etherton attended three two-week resident summer sessions at Rutgers University, completed two years of extension work and submitted a thesis or assigned research project.

"During the final resident session he defended his thesis research project before a panel of experts on the subject."

Etherton joined First Granite City National Bank in 1956 where he has served in several positions of responsibility before assuming his present position as head of the installment Loan Department. He is 42, and lives with his wife and two children at R. R. 2, Box 791, Granite City.

Charge possession of stolen property by 2

Demetrius D. Compton, 18, of St. Louis, and Otis "Hobo" Robinson, 23, of Memphis, Tenn., were arrested by Madison police at 10:30 p.m. Monday and charged, with possession of stolen property.

Officers said they saw the men in a car at Eighth and State streets and followed them to Third Street and Madison Avenue where the car was stopped for having no rear back seat. They asked for the car trunk to be opened and found evidence of stolen items in the trunk, authorities said.

The two men were taken to the police station for questioning and officials of the Terminal Railroad Association reported a boxcar near Eighth and State streets had been broken open and numerous tires stolen.

Officers checked a vacant house in the 700 block of State Street to determine if other stolen items had been hidden there and recovered about 1,000 to 1,500 radio remote control units manufactured for the U.S. Navy, Bureau of Ships, F.B.I. investigators were alerted.

They are attempting to determine if the units were stolen. It is believed the Navy has discontinued use of the units.

State safety inspector ranks being thinned

By BOB ESTILL

Springfield — The ranks of the Department of Transportation inspectors responsible for keeping tabs on safety inspection of school buses, other buses, trucks and large trailers are being thinned.

The DOT's vehicle inspection division funded for 44 employees and operating now with about 35 is to be cut to 16 field inspectors and an office staff of six at part of the department-wide attempt to chop some 1,000 employees from the payroll.

Although the division is small in number, it has an important assignment. The division is responsible for monitoring the state's privately owned inspection facilities—some 930 testing lanes and 4,000 mechanics.

The inspectors see that safety certificate stickers are earned and not given in exchange for payoffs, that examining equipment functions properly and the mechanics make thorough checks.

Numerous efforts to contact Transportation Sec. Langhorne Bond were unsuccessful. He was unavailable for comment on how the decision was reached to cut the inspectors.

One DOT source said each inspector was responsible for about 35 traffic safety lanes. The reduction means each man will have to monitor about 80 lanes. Instead of going to each lane on a monthly basis, the inspectors now will be able to go to each lane only every other month.

He said the cut could tell at this stage the less frequent visits might lead to laxity at the stations. The source, fearing for his name, asked that his name not be used.

Personnel Officer Robert D. Rhoads confirmed the cut-back and said he assumed it was part of the department-wide budget trimming.

Troopers given awards for top performances

Gov. Daniel Walker on Tuesday handed out plaques to eight state troopers for outstanding performance of duties at the 14th annual State Police Awards Banquet in Springfield.

The awards recognized the entire force for lowering traffic fatalities over the past two years.

Walker cited a new theory in accident prevention called "selective patrol" as being highly instrumental in lowering fatalities from 2,490 in 1971 to 2,254 in 1972. The figure through June 18 was 996, still below the rate for 1972.

"On Jan. 29, 1972, Trooper Allen assisted in a local call to a citizen disturbance. The residence and discovered a man had badly cut himself running his arm through a storm door. The man had left, leaving a large amount of blood. Allen proceeded to the nearest hospital but no one had been admitted recently with that type of injury."

"Allen began retracing the most likely route from the hospital to the residence and found a car going in circles in an open field with no driver visible. Allen called an ambulance and ran into the field, jumped into the car and dragged the occupant out. He applied direct pressure to a badly bleeding arm until the ambulance arrived. It was the opinion of a doctor at the hospital that the man would have bled to death in another 10 to 15 minutes without Allen's alert work. Allen earlier in the year received a National Red Cross Award for the same incident."

"Trooper Michael A. Koval, 29, of Virden, assigned to District 11, Maryville, Superintendent's Award for Merit."

"On Jan. 30, 1972, while on patrol, Trooper Koval spotted a pickup truck matching the description believed to have been used in a murder several days before. He called authorities and waited for the owner to come out of a cafe where the truck was parked. The driver was a woman who in the year received a National Red Cross Award for the same incident."

ROLES STUDIED. Students learn all about women

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Don't call them "men and women." If you do make the blunder — as one reporter did — some one of the 28 students who meet each day in room 505 for the 8 a.m. period at Crawford High School here is sure to pipe up smartly and ask, "Why didn't you say 'women and men'?"

Then they'll point out that the women in the class outnumber the men by almost five to one.

That must be what they mean when they say some kids are just too smart.

But these kids not only are smart, they're inquiring into a field that still ranks relatively low in most high school interest polls — the liberation of women.

That subject, though big on college campuses, seldom draws as much interest among the teen-set as, say, how to get a boyfriend.

But, for whatever reasons, these 28 young "women and men" — 22 women and 6 men — have enrolled in a unique class titled "Women in History."

What makes it unique is that this class is the only feminist high school class in the San Diego school system.

And students can take it for full credit toward graduation. The students are delving into the stereotyped roles which feminists believe have shackled women throughout history, current problems of women, and female accomplishments, past and present.

But teacher Sharon Hall says she doesn't want the class to be known as a "Women's Liberation" course.

She tries to provide balance by presenting such speakers as essayist and feminist, Gertrude Stein, and Dr. William Davidson, president of the National Association of Women's History.

The other thing that makes this class unique is Ms. Hall's unconventional teaching method.

No fan of lecturing, she diverts her students with poll-taking, interviews, skits, role-playing, games, speakers, readings and debates.

The purpose of such techniques apparently is to keep her students interested enough to remember what they're supposed to be learning (no mean accomplishment if one tries to recall, for example, how much American history he — or she — remembers from high school).

If, however, other students and teachers are sometimes baffled by activities in room 505 it shouldn't be too surprising.

At any minute the classroom door may burst open and all 28 students spill over the campus pencils and notebooks in hand, to poll other students on their opinions as to the roles women should play in society.

Then they scurry back to their own classroom and discuss the results of the poll and compare answers.

A peek through the classroom door on other days would reveal more startling scenarios:

Role-playing skits, written and performed by students, are particularly popular among them. They are especially fond of lampooning TV coffee commercials.

But in their brand of commercial there's no Mrs. Olsen to save the day and the wife ends telling her husband to make his own coffee if he doesn't like hers.

A fitting end that prompts glee among the students. (And who among viewers hasn't wanted to say the same to those ratty TV husbands who embarrass their wives over a measly cup of coffee?)

Fun and games aren't the whole course, though. Students do have to wade through daily textbooks. And what they like best are the almost daily class discussions, sometimes producing hot debates, and it's one of the things I like to do best," commented student Dave Messinger.

High-sounding words for a high school student. But that is what the young man said. (Another fellow was more pragmatic: "I like the odds in this class — five to one, girls over boys.") in their chores, and the trip through the electronic archway is merely part of the walk to the boarding gate. The presence of a uniformed and armed guard gives additional sense of security, even though some of us regret its necessity as contrary to the freedoms America used to represent. The pre-search hijackers, however, should be enough to remind everyone of the need for the present system.

While the record of weapon seizures in early 1973 seems impressive, there can be no count of the great number of gun-carrying hijackers who have been deterred from even trying to get through the 100 per cent search plus electronic inspection. The record may speak for itself. With 1973 so far a year of safe flight for many millions of passengers, up to this year there were 160 air seizures by men and women in various forms of desperation. hijackers, threatened to destroy hijacked planes with all persons aboard.

The pressure from a minority of travelers for relaxed inspections so worries the FAA that it is thinking of ways to let down a bit in case political interference forces such action. James Murphy, director of FAA's Air Transport Security Service, said recently in a newspaper interview that he has no present plan for early revision of rules but that he considers it "prudent" to prepare for such an eventuality.

"We're looking for a shelf item," he said, "something we can reach up and pull down when the need arises."

Let's hope Murphy never finds his "shelf item." One hundred per cent screening is making the skies safe for air passengers. Isn't that the name of the game?

THE WORLD OF MUSIC Strawbs develop a new sound

By JUDY HUGG
Copley News Service

The Strawbs, who for many years ranked as one of England's top folk groups, have undergone some personal and musical style changes which have resulted in their laying down the finest LP in the group's history.

Dave Cousins, lead singer, master guitarist and song writer, explained the group's new sound in an interview following the windup of their U.S. tour.

"I suppose it's more electric than it has been before," said the A&M recording artist. "Perhaps a more powerful type rock 'n' roll yet simpler at times. Lyrically, the new album 'Busting At The Seam,' is very different because it's much more outspoken than our previous ones which were sort of couched in, poetic notions instead of getting right to the point."

The Strawbs, which is short for The Strawberry Hill Boys, started out as one of the first folk music bands in England. After a while they broke into folk music because Dave thought it rather silly to be singing the blues with an English accent.

Dave's musical background stems from the many skiffle bands that roamed Britain in his earlier years.

The skiffle was brought to Britain by a chap named Lonnie Donegan who was a banjo player in a jazz band. He recalled, "It was a way of paying the rent. Several musicians, usually playing acoustic guitars, piano and the washbasin, would open their house and play for anyone who wandered in. After each session they would pass the hat and hope to pay the rent with the profits."

During these sessions many types of music could be heard and with this musical heritage the band found themselves playing a mixture of sounds from the traditional English music of the past, spiced up with new contemporary sounds. Recently the trans-band into an electric one, and the addition of Blue Weaver to the cast of Richard Hudson, David Lambert, John Ford and Cousins have given the band a much welcomed new dimension.

Weaver has integrated the band, if you know what I mean," said Dave. "When Rick (Wakeman) was with us he was the featured soloist because he was the only one playing a melodic lead instrument. However, Blue isn't as technically oriented as Rick.

RECRUITING Volunteer Army in new approach

By BRUCE LEWIS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — With the war over and the draft ended, you might expect to see "going out of business" signs on the doors and windows of recruiting stations.

Instead, the Army has initiated a new full-time business — the world's largest employment agency.

Recruits are putting out literally tons of literature with new slogans — most notably, "Today's Army wants to join you." Most significantly and most indicative of the new image is the Army pledge:

"We've got over 300 different kinds of good, steady jobs."

This reporter decided to look into this new business the television ads and window signs have been talking about. I went to an Army recruiting office.

I told the recruiter I was interested in becoming a military journalist.

Recruiter S. Sgt. Jake Hayward gave me coffee, a snack and a smile. He told me he could guarantee me the job I wanted. Certain military jobs offered a $1,500 cash bonus for enlistees, he said.

He said I could choose the place I wanted to go for training and where I wanted to be stationed.

I discovered I could get a legal contract to do exactly what I wanted and spend up to 16 months in another foreign country.

He offered a number of options, such as allowing me to enter the service up to six months after I signed up.

So he became an integrator, the type of player who plays along with everyone else and that's good for us because it made us more of a band."

One of the most outstanding aspects of "Busting At The Seam" is its lyrical content. The six cuts penned by Dave are very much like heartfelt emotional diary.

"I get involved in many emotional situations," he said, "and since I use writing as a method of therapy they always reflect my moods at the time. For example, 'The River' is my favorite song on the LP. It's the most emotional one and I just love the way the strings creep in halfway through. It was a very tearful song when I wrote it, about the breaking up of my marriage and the woman I went off with who was expecting a baby."

"Down By The Sea" was written when I started having

He guaranteed I would be paid a salary of more than $300 a month, plus free room and board. After basic training he said I would work five days a week and likely have weekends off.

I was a bit leary of the whole thing, remembering stories about friends who went into the service with similar but empty promises a few years ago.

S. Sgt. Hayward said under this new program all I needed was to pass the physical and the mental tests and then he could arrange to send me where I wanted and when I wanted to go.

The contract, I learned, allows a male or female volunteer to get out of the Army if it doesn't fulfill the terms of the contract. I wanted to know more. But I nearly balked when he mentioned qualifying tests.

I was reluctant to go for the Army physical and mental tests. I had heard stories about how the Army treated people who came to the induction center.

I remembered stories about insulting drill sergeant types, with abusive language and ear-shattering voices.

S. Sgt. Hayward said all that had changed. I decided to take a chance.

There must have been 300 men at the Armed Forces Building in Los Angeles when I arrived about 7 a.m.

I was greeted by smiles instead of a drill sergeant.

I heard officers from various services calling us "customers" in the traditional sense, but as if we were customers.

My doubts about this girl. I began to miss my children at home and the song reflected that. I was going to sort of just sit back and take it easy after a while. It also explained why they fail to take notice of the warning signs, and in the end the whole life-style crumbles. However, I was the end of the song my loneliness and the desire to be back in that situation again comes out.

"Tears And Pavan" was written as sort of a love poem to the girl I was in love with at the time and "Stormy Down" is about a journey I made in the west country in England on a terrible stormy night after having arguments with the band."

"Yes, it was a big hit in England but it started quite a controversy with some of the conservative members of Parliament," he said. "They tried to get it banned because

I heard the word 'customer' used over and over. The testing process took about two hours. A few minutes later we were on our way to the physical exam area with our test results and necessary medical papers.

There were no long waits — a minute at the most — at any of the 12 examining stations.

The personnel showed us respect throughout the testing. They joked and were informal at many stations.

The examiners were mostly young. Much younger than before, I later learned.

When it was over, just before noon, I was relieved. It was also a little tired, but impressed by the way everyone was treated. None of the testing officers knew I was a reporter.

The third senior officer, Marine Maj. Douglas R. Manning, later talked with me about changes that had taken place since the announcement more than a year ago that the draft was to end.

Maj. Manning said that the drill sergeant treatment was not continued and that the Army and other services view the potential volunteer as someone who needs a service.

"We have a service to give the men and women who come here for assistance," said Manning. "It is to our advantage to try to get our customers to relax."

He said the general in command of recruiting in all services suggested that the military personnel use the term "customer."

Calling those who come in for testing "FIPS" was degrading, said Manning. He said customer is a word people understand and carries an air of respectability.

The whole testing process has been streamlined by cutting out unnecessary waits at various testing stations, Manning explained.

they felt it was against government policy. However the nations who were going through a session of strikes at the time picked it up as their theme song which of course was very good for us.

Don't get me wrong, the Strawbs have more to offer than tearful lyrics. The LP is the weight of lush harmonies and vocals, interwoven with tingling riffs of strings and banjo melodies from Dave's band. Truly a valuable addition to anyone's record collection.

A CHANGING WORLD Air passenger search pays off

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor, Copley News Service

Some people don't know a good thing when they see it. In this case these are the few hundreds of air travelers who are putting pressure on the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to relax the stringent anti-hijack search regulations in force since Jan.

Most of the millions who ride the airplanes consider it relaxing — and much safer — to get aboard a jet in Los Angeles and fly to Washington without, or almost without, the fear of going to Havana, the Middle East or some other place picked at the whim of a gun-carrying hijacker.

Those who clamor for removal of the very minor inconvenience at U.S. airports are relaxing — and much safer — to get aboard a jet in Los Angeles and fly to Washington without, or almost without, the fear of going to Havana, the Middle East or some other place picked at the whim of a gun-carrying hijacker.

University Theatre to present 'Marigolds'

The University Theatre at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will present Paul Zindel's prize-winning play, "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," July 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. in the Communications Building theater. Members of the cast include Peggy Zito, St. Louis, who plays the part of Beatrice; Susan Farwell, Fairview Heights, cast as Ruth; Cara Franke, Edwardsville, Tillie; and Peggy Clark, Elsah, as Nanny; and Kathy Goode, Edwardsville, Janice.

The first of four plays to be presented at the University this summer, "Marigolds" is directed by Jan Crow of St. Louis, who is working on her master's degree at SIUE, with a concentration in directing. For the first time, the University Theatre will charge admission. Tickets for the general public are $2 each. Students will be admitted for $1. William Villhauer, director of the theater program at SIUE, explained that budget cuts and rising costs make it necessary to impose a charge. Tickets went on sale Monday in the lobby of the Communications Building. The ticket booth will be open week days from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

CHARTER CLASSMATES. Members of the first class of Southern Illinois University's new medical school are greeted by administrators during an SIUC Carbondale orientation ceremony. They have begun studies this summer at SIUC. After a year, they will move to the University's Springfield medical campus for two final years of clinical work. Seated, from left: Dr. Richard Moy, dean of the medical school; Gregory Renner of Freeburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Renner; Stephen Goetter of Collinsville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Goetter; and Jeffrey Lybarger of 1825 P. Rimrose Ave., Granite City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Lybarger. Standing, from left: Willis Malone, SIUC executive vice-president; and Michael Darnell, Cahokia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Darnell. Renner is a graduate of the University of Dayton; Goetter, of the University of Illinois; and Lybarger, of SIUC. Darnell was graduated from Iowa State University.

Bids over estimate on SIUC recreation unit

A proposed $8,900,000 student recreation building complex at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale will be scaled down because construction bids are far over the project budget. Campus Architect Willard Hart said general construction and mechanical work bids totaling $9,951,001 will have to be reviewed and plans revised for a re-bid date sometime in August.

Possible deletions, he said, could be indoor handball courts and one of three triple-sport gymnasiums. J. L. Simmons Co., Inc. of Decatur was apparent low bidder on general construction at $7,590,000. Hart said the building construction figure would have to be pared down to at least $6,750,000 with design changes. Bids taken earlier on rerouting utility lines and extending steam tunnels to the 12-square-block construction area totaled $500,710, boosting the entire project bill — based on apparent low bids — to $10,451,711. The $8,900,000 budget figure has been set as a ceiling to cover every phase of the project, including architect, engineer fees and site development. The money has been derived from student fees collected at a $15 per-student quarterly rate for the past eight years.

Skunks, bats causing many cases of rabies

Copley News Service
Springfield — It's a good thing skunks and bats have the public's images they have. If they were cuddly as kittens or pleasant as puppies, rabies would probably be much more prevalent in Illinois.

Through the mere term "rabiers" conjures up an image of a frothing, raging, mad dog, says Dr. Russell Martin in the State Public Health Department's Division of Disease Control, in Illinois the disease is carried in 60 to 70 percent of identified cases by skunks. Bats account for a substantial number of the rest of identified rabies incidents, particularly in urban areas, and even cattle sometimes carry it, while only five to 15 of the medical identified cases of rabies in animals have been examined each year come from dogs, he said.

The department's weekly report of cases indicates that 2,419 heads have been examined so far this year in the state, 235 of them in the Chicago area. Of those, 149 were found to be positive — the animal had been rabid — and 79 persons underwent rabies inoculations in the state with vaccine obtained through the department.

Surprisingly, of the 235 heads examined in the Chicago region this year, none were positive but 14 persons underwent treatment anyway. The other 65 so far this year to receive treatment, with department vaccine were scattered through the rest of Illinois. The discrepancy between positive identifications and numbers of treatments, Dr. Martin said, may reflect that the animal did not actually expose anyone or that the patient preferred to purchase the vaccine through his own doctor for the treatments.

Rabies inoculations are tedious, painful, and sometimes distressing side effects. From 14 to 21 daily injections are required and while the vaccine itself cost less than $2 per day, there will be another $7 to $8 daily cost for each office visit and injection, so rabies inoculations can be expensive as well as unpleasant. However, Dr. Martin said, recently there has been a change of medical attitude where doctors previously usually advised waiting 10 days to see if the suspected animal could be caught and examined, now more doctors are urging that treatment be started at once.

"If the animal is found and is rabid, treatment would have to be started anyway," he said, "and if it's found and it isn't rabid, treatment can be stopped." Never vaccinated, he added, have made the treatments somewhat less painful and distressing than they used to be. Though one would assume most people would not go in hot pursuit of either a skunk or a bat, and it is difficult to picture a rabid, shifty-eyed skunk stealthily stalking a victim through the garden, people do get infected from both of them regularly, Dr. Martin said. Usually the infected animal, he added, has made the treatments somewhat less painful and distressing than they used to be.

Usually the infected animal, he added, has made the treatments somewhat less painful and distressing than they used to be.

already ill and disorganized, will wander into a populated area or even a yard which normally they would avoid. A child or a pet dog or cat, seeing a crowsy skunk or a fluttering bat out in broad daylight, may be tempted to investigate and be bitten.

A dog, known to have been bitten by a rabid animal, must be quarantined for 30 days even if the dog has had valid rabies inoculations. If he has not had a rabies vaccination within the last year, he must be kept confined for six months, Dr. Martin said, since rabies can incubate for that long before showing itself. The moral, it would seem, is to stay away from skunks and bats no matter how helpless they seem, and perhaps consider a nice turtle or a tank of fish for pets.

Five local men among 8 retiring at GC Steel

Five of eight men retiring from Granite City Steel Co. this month are Granite City residents.

They are James Talley, 1804 Primrose Ave.; Richard Langley, 2828 Yale Drive; Robert James, 3 Petunia Lane; Marcellus Bradford, 155 Arlington Drive; and Clarence "Mac" Marmion, 3015 Denver St.

The other June retirees are Robert Wilson of Dexter, Mo.; Richard Econe of Bond, Ill.; and Floyd Powell of Cottage Hills, Ill.

Bradford had the longest tour of continuous service with the steel company—more than 38 years. He was a General Roll Shop grinder operator. He and his wife, Lois, have one daughter, two grandchildren. Bradford's brother, Archie, also works for Granite City Steel.

Robert James retired on disability as Machine Shop machinist after more than 27 years of service with the company. He started at the North Plant in March 1949 and worked there only 10 months before transferring to the Machine Shop. He has three sons and two daughters.

Richard Langley retires at the end of June as a North Plant Galvanizer Warehouse weigher after more than 26 years of service with Granite City Steel. He was on the same job in the same unit for his entire career. Langley and his wife, Anne, have two daughters, one granddaughter.

"Mac" Marmion, who retired on disability after 25 years of company service, was a Cold Strip shear line helper. He started in April 1948 in the Cold Strip. He and his wife, Virginia, have four daughters.

James Talley, a veteran of more than 24 years with Granite City Steel, retired as General Roll Shop crane man. He started with the company on the Cold Strip Mill in September 1948. He and his wife, Mildred, have three sons, five grandchildren.

Robert Wilson, who retired on disability as Blast Furnace Maintenance millwright leader, had more than 26 years of service with GCSS. He also had a previous period of service with the company. He and his wife, Lillian, have four sons and six grandchildren. The Wilsons plan to move back to Madison.

Richard Econe, retiring at the end of June after more than 18 years with the company, was a Steel Fab shear man at the North Plant. He spent all his service in that department. Econe and his wife, Mary, have a son, a daughter and four grandchildren. The son, Richard, also works at Granite City Steel.

Floyd Powell, who retires on disability as North Plant weigher at the end of June, had 18 years of service with Granite City Steel. He started his career at the North Plant in May 1955. He and his wife, Mary, have three sons and four daughters.

Governor offers aid in strike dispute

Gov. Dan Walker has written to Ozark Air Lines and the Ozark Air Lines Mechanics Association offering his office to help settle the 2½ month strike.

In his letter to the presidents of both organizations, the governor said: "I am offering my office, as governor of the State of Illinois, to the parties involved in this dispute. I am sure that you are well aware of the economic results of the strike to your respective organizations, but I think it might be helpful in the resolution of this dispute to explain to you the economic loss to the State of Illinois and to the other states serviced by Ozark Air Lines."

"Perhaps by injecting the public interest to a larger extent into the negotiations, settlement of this strike may be hastened," Governor Walker followed up the letter with telegrams to the governors of 13 states serviced by Ozark urging them to contact the union and the airline.

In his telegram to the governors, Governor Walker said in part: "If you share my concern, I would be most grateful if you could contact the union and the airline) to let them know that governors in all states Ozark serves are deeply concerned about the problem."

Utility system earns honor medal award

The American Water Works Co. System, of which the East St. Louis and Interurban Water Co. is a part, has received the George Washington Honor Medal Award from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa. It was announced this week.

R. W. Greaves, company manager, said the award was based on two pamphlets

Walker seeks change in state air bill

Gov. Dan Walker on Monday exercised his constitutional amendment veto power and returned to the House with recommendations for change in a bill creating an Illinois Aeronautics Board. He said if the recommended changes are adopted, he will sign the bill. The bill (HB 1125) was drafted and introduced following extensive investigation by the Illinois Legislative Commission into the October 1971 crash of a Chicago and Southern Airlines plane near Peoria Airport, which killed 16 people.

Granite City PRESS-RECORD

Governor Walker said the principal sponsors of the bill, Reps. W. Timothy Simms (R., Rockford) and Joseph G. Sevik (R., Berwyn) and Sen. Philip J. Rock (D., Chicago) requested that the final version be returned so that it can be amended.

Charles Siragusa, who conducted the Chicago and Southern Airlines investigation, was also present when the message was signed. The recommended changes would clearly define the regulation-writing responsibilities of the new board as distinguished from the enforcement responsibilities of the Department of Aeronautics.

Governor Walker said the request for changes in a bill already sent to his desk demonstrates the usefulness of the unique amendatory veto provision of the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

He said the purpose of the changes in the bi-partisan request for an amendatory veto is to separate the new regulatory board from the Department of Aeronautics so that the board is an independent agency rather than an arm of the administration. The Department of Aeronautics would enforce the rules and regulations adopted by the board.

Under present law, the Illinois Commerce Commission has regulatory power over airline carriers which travel only within Illinois.
